QUEEN MARIE CURTAILS AMERICAN VISIT COUNTY APPRAISAL WILL ADD $3,832,630 TO PROPERTY VALUES

KING FERDINAND'S ILLNESS CAUSE FOR CANCELLING PLANS

Royal Party Will Sail November 24 For Bucharest

ABOARD QUEEN MARIE'S SPECIAL TRAIN (In LOUISVILLE, KY.) Nov. 18.—Queen Marie of Roumania today cut short her triumphal tour of America when she received word that the days of King Ferdinand were numbered.

"My heart is heavy," said her majesty, with tears in her eyes. "I have heard unfortunate news. I must go home. I am a soldier and duty takes precedence."

The Balkan queen will take the liner that may carry her back to Bucharest, where she may nurse her beloved monarch. It is planned at present for her to sail from New York on the Berengaria, November 24. She had previously expected to sail December 11. A cable in cipher from abroad reporting the grave condition of the King of Roumania caused her majesty to make the unexpected announcement. A state of temporary chaos reigned aboard the royal Roumanian special as sheaves of telegrams were dispatched cancelling all social engagements. The remainder of her American itinerary will be curtailed. It was undecided today whether she would set out for New York instantly and await the sailing of a suitable liner or if she would carry out the schedule as far as Detroit, which would include a visit to Cincinnati.

The proposed trip of Princess Ileana and Prince Nicolas to the Army-Navy football game in Chicago, November 27, was cancelled today.

Another worry which weighed on the mind of Queen Marie was the physical condition of Princess Ileana. Still unnerved from a close escape from serious injury when the roadster she was driving collided with a heavy motor truck on the road from Chicago to Indianapolis, the princess was confined to bed today with a trained nurse in attendance. The royal patient was officially reported as merely suffering from "excessive fatigue." Less official information revealed that her highness had an irregular pulse and was subject to fainting spells.

While the princess showed no outward signs of injuries from the accident, the possible after-effects of the exposure to a driving snow and rainstorm in an open car were carefully guarded against.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—Reports that Queen Marie has decided to curtail her American trip and return to Roumania as soon as possible occasioned no surprise here.

It has been an open secret in Balkan circles for several weeks that the condition of King Ferdinand is regarded with considerable concern. According to reports received here from Bucharest, the king is suffering from a severe internal malady and has not taken proper care of himself but has been inclined to indulge himself whenever his condition appeared to be improving.

In some circles it was also rumored that there may be political motives behind the queen's decision to return. There are indications here that some of the political policies of the queen are in danger of being upset in her absence.

Some reports were received renewing the old rumors that Prince Carol is about to be restored to his rights of succession in view of the uncertainty of King Ferdinand's health.

CANTON VICE RING HABITUES ON RUN

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—The remnants of Canton's notorious vice ring are running for cover.

"Chuck" Burns, well known in police-court history there, today voluntarily appeared before United States District Attorney A. E. Bernsten here and, with his attorney, Joseph Hilton, of Canton, remonstrated against alleged "persecution" by the authorities.

Burns, former associate of Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner, both of whom have been indicted in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher, has been raided several times recently, he told the federal officer here.

Bernsten announces that it was his intention to question Burns, further in connection with an alleged liquor and narcotic conspiracy which embraced the territory from Cleveland to Pittsburgh. Burns the federal attorney declared, already has given reliable information in the government's campaign to rid the territory of violators.

ENTIRE FAMILY VICTIMS OF POISON, FOOD TESTED

Wellesley Professor, Wife and Three Children, Are Ill—Experts Examine Breakfast Menu For Poison

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Professor Henry Meyer, of Wellesley College, his wife and three children were battling for their lives today as police waited at the state house for experts to analyze parts of a "poison meal" and furnish a clue to the trail of a fiend, who, authorities are convinced, attempted a wholesale poisoning.

Something that each member of the family ate for breakfast yesterday contained the poison that so nearly carried death with it.

Today Professor Meyer groaned from his sick bed that he knew of no enemy who would attempt so monstrous a crime.

Mrs. Meyer prepared the breakfast, the maid being away. She served orange juice, cooked cereal, scrambled eggs, toast and coffee. Parts of each of these dishes today were under the microscope at the state health department. Van Cleve Meyer, 9, and Antoinette, 10, were at school and the professor was enroute to Boston when the members of the family were seized with deadly nausea. Answering a call from Antoinette's school, Mrs. Meyer was attacked en route home and could hardly guide the automobile. Mrs. Meyer collapsed when Van Cleve staggered in, to be followed by the father. Only Van Cleve was able to crawl to the telephone and summon aid.

TURKS FOR COOLIDGE
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Ohio is the first state to come forward with a concrete assurance that President and Mrs. Coolidge will enjoy an approved Thanksgiving meal. A large crate containing three very heavy and very live turkeys arrived at the White House this morning. The fowls were the gift of the People's National Bank of Mount Pleasant, Ohio.

PHYSICIAN KILLED AT STEUBENVILLE; ENEMIES BLAMED

Doctor Was Hounded From City To City Say Friends

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—Hounded and driven from one city to another for years by enemies who have not been identified, Dr. J. L. Delphino, 51, fell a victim to their bullets on a lonely road here early this morning.

The physician's body was found, slumped to the floor of his automobile, riddled with bullets from an automatic pistol, at Bates Bridge, across the river from here.

Dr. Delphino came here from Martins Ferry about a year ago. His arrival was unostentatious but his ability as a practitioner soon brought him local fame. He admitted to friends that he had fled from one town to another in the hope of evading enemies but did not explain the circumstances. He said he left Martins Ferry when he felt fears for his life.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—A divorce suit on file in common pleas court here today showed Dr. D. L. Delphino, former Martins Ferry physician, who was mysteriously slain near Pollansbee, Va., early today, was seeking separation from what officials say was his first wife.

Dr. Delphino was arrested for pointing firearms and was also implicated in several civil suits here, according to local court attaches.

HOPES FOR SAFETY OF MINERS ARE SLIM

HAZLETOWN, Pa., Nov. 18.—As rescue workers placed more pumps in position for operation today, little hope was expressed that the six men trapped behind a bank of flood waters in the Tom-hicken colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, near here, would be rescued alive.

The six men, with four others who escaped, were trapped when the bed of a creek broke Tuesday, following heavy rains, flooding the workings of the mine.

Nine officials directing the work said today that no sign of life had been obtained from the six miners. However, the work was being pushed with all speed, in the hope that the men have found a high point in the mine above the water level.

The men are trapped more than a thousand feet below the surface on No. 16 level.

PLAN FUNERAL
STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 18.—Funeral arrangements are being made here today for Dean M. Criswell, 54, banker and former treasurer of Jefferson County, who died late yesterday after a brief illness.

FARM LEGISLATION DEMANDED BY BLOC; MAY HALT CONGRESS

Threaten To Hold Body Until Relief Is Passed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The spectre of farm relief legislation flashed across the congressional horizon today to threaten the Coolidge administration anew with the possibility of an extra session of congress next spring. The Democrats already are demanding an extra session for tax reduction.

Enact the McNary-Haugen bill by next March 4, was the cry of returning farm bloc leaders, or congress will be held in session until it is enacted. The bloc leaders, while avoiding an open threat of filibustering tactics, made it plain they considered farm relief more important than any other legislation likely to confront congress during the coming winter.

The action of the St. Louis farm conference in demanding early passage of a bill providing for a government export corporation to be financed by an equalization fee was pointed to as indicating the necessity for enactment of the McNary-Haugen bill. The latter provides just such a corporation and calls for an equalization fee to be paid by the farmers.

The farm bloc will be reorganized and open its offensive for passage of the bill as soon as congress convenes according to Senator Gooding, Republican, of Idaho. Gooding declared he felt there was time enough to pass the measure before March 4 but, if not, he added, "I shall be tempted to do anything to get the legislation enacted."

If the farm bloc attempts a filibuster, it is certain to provoke an extra session of congress. The Democrats with their demands for immediate tax reduction, already are agitating for a special session next spring, while the disagreements over the Illinois waterway project, which the administration plans to push this winter—will provide additional recruits.

The farm bloc will go into the new fight in a stronger position than in the last session, where it met defeat. The recent price deflation in cotton, with its resultant hardships upon the South, has won over many converts. In fact, one provision of the bill last spring would have set aside a huge fund to be used solely to stabilize cotton prices in event of a bumper crop. Had the bill been in force now, its advocates contend, present cotton depression could have been averted.

KING BENJAMIN PURNELL RELEASED ON $70,000 BOND; GREETED ROYALLY BY HIS FOLLOWERS

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18.—Suffering from a severe attack of diabetes, which has crippled him in the last year, "King" Benjamin Purnell, aged leader of the House of David, was back in the colony today, a weak, sick man.

TAKES U. S. SPEED SCALP TO ITALY

With no chance of him turning professional, Mario de Bernardi is on his way back to Italy with world's seaplane speed mark, set against U. S. navy fliers in Schneider cup races. He is seen in seaplane in which he flew 246 miles an hour, just before it was dismantled to go back with him.

APPROPRIATIONS TO PROVIDE IMPROVEMENTS AT HOME URGED

Medical Consulting Staff Wants Nearly $500,000 From Legislature—Elects Same Officers at Meeting Here

Re-election of Dr. J. E. Greiwe, Cincinnati, as dean and Dr. A. C. Messenger, of Xenia, as secretary of the consulting medical staff, of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home and discussion urging the success of legislation insuring an appropriation of $483,000 for needs of the institution, were the chief items of business taken up at the annual meeting of the department at the Home, Wednesday.

One hundred and ten thousand dollars is the figure named to provide a new hospital and equipment for the institution. One hundred thousand dollars has been fixed as the amount needed for a nursery, for children under four years; $73,000 for remodeling the cottages, installing bathrooms and stairways etc., and $200,000 for new cottages to properly house the children.

Dr. C. P. Robbins, of the state board of health, who had charge of a recent medical clinic at the Home gave his report of the investigation. Discussion of the data uncovered in the survey, followed his report. Dr. T. F. Myer, resident physician, submitted his report, covering his service at the Home from September.

Dr. William Landerbaech, Dayton, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, was elected to the staff, during the business session. The following physicians and medical authorities were proposed for membership to be voted on at the next meeting: Dr. Graeme Mitchell, Cincinnati; Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, Cincinnati; Dr. James McMurray, Marion; Dr. H. C. Messenger, Dr. R. R. McClellan and S. N. McClellan, radiographer, all of Xenia and Dr. F. B. Woolard, Washington, C. H., as consulting dentist.

Decision was reached to hold a similar meeting next June, inaugurating a plan for semi-annual meetings. It has been found that business of the body becomes complicated and too heavy when a year elapses between meetings, and semi-annual meetings were resolved upon to relieve this situation.

A banquet for the medical men, their wives and invited guests, followed at 1 o'clock. An elaborate three course menu was served, the tables being centered with huge bouquets of chrysanthemums grown in the Home flower gardens, with lighted yellow tapers at each cover.

Dr. Greiwe introduced the speakers at the banquet, with Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, head of the College of Medicine, University of Cincinnati, appearing first. He deplored overcrowded conditions in the Home dormitories and proposed better facilities at the institution. He called attention to other health hazards, and commended the physical survey of the State Board of Health. "Modern facilities are needed and the highest grade of efficiency in such a fine institution," he said. He expressed hope of favorable legislation for the proposed budget.

He regretted the general policy

UNITED STATES MAY SET PROTECTORATE UP FOR NICARAGUA

Request Of Country Opens Avenue To Combat Radicals

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—An avenue, apparently, was opened today for the United States to maintain a semi-permanent naval force in Nicaraguan waters to combat what the state department considers the active encroachment of "Mexican radicalism" into the countries of the Caribbean.

Such a policy would amount, of course, to a virtual American protectorate over Nicaragua and would not be displeasing to American concerns that have large interests in the country.

The avenue has been opened by the request of Adolfo Diaz, the new president of Nicaragua, for something very close to permanent intervention by the American government into the disorderly affairs of the little republic. Diaz has stated that this semi-intervention is necessary to prevent neighboring countries, principally Mexico, from aiding and fomenting revolutionary activities in his country. The state department has received his request sympathetically and is considering it.

Diaz was elevated to the presidency of Nicaragua a few days ago and was promptly accorded recognition by the state department, which for a year prior had refused to recognize the revolutionary government headed by General Emilio Chamorro. The American government's opposition to Diaz was based on the fact that Diaz was a former ally of the United States, and under the guiding influence of the American charge at Managua, Diaz was chosen to succeed him.

The state department has been concerned for some time over evidences of what it considered Mexican "interference" in the affairs of Nicaragua and also of Guatemala.

Official reports have disclosed that the liberal revolutionists had access to Mexican arms and ammunition. Filibustering ships, equipped with various assortments of flags and loaded with rifles and ammunition, in some cases, men, were enabled to clear mysteriously from Mexico ports and arrive just as mysteriously at Nicaraguan ports.

The Calles government officially disavowed any connection with these activities. Nevertheless, it is accepted in Washington that they could not have gone on without the knowledge, if not the connivance, of officials of the Mexican government.

Some of these gun-running expeditions were halted by the American warships and marines which the state department rushed to Nicaraguan waters "to protect the lives and property of American citizens." More of them succeeded than failed, however.

Coupled with the uneasiness of the state department over the general aspect of one Caribbean country "interfering" with the international affairs of a neighboring country is the general distrust which some administration officials feel over the general political tendencies of the present government of Mexico. The words "not shiesm" and "radicalism" are frequently used by officials when talking privately about the political direction of the Calles government.

TENEMENT FIRE CAUSES DEATH OF TWO; FIREMEN RESCUE 22

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Fire which swept a tenement building at Madison avenue and 107th street early today killed two persons and resulted in serious injury to four others. Twenty-five persons trapped by the flames were carried from the building by firemen.

The dead were: Hyman Bush, 42, a tenant, and his 11-year-old daughter, Emma.

His wife, Rebecca, 37, and their two other children, Doris, 9 and Esther, 6, and a brother, Emanuel Borg, were overcome by smoke and seriously burned. At Mount Sinai hospital, surgeons said the two children had little chance for recovery.

The blaze was believed to have started in a baby carriage in the rear of the lower hall, from a cigarette stub.

New Duplicate Certified To State Tax Commission—Shows Values Have Jumped 12 Per Cent Since 1910.

Greene-County's first re-appraisal of real estate since 1910, recently completed after seven months work, indicates the general tax duplicate for 1926 will show an increase of nearly $4,000,000 over the total property valuation in 1925.

The 1926 tax duplicate for Greene County, as certified to the State Tax Commission this week by County Auditor R. O. Wead, totals $35,714,160, while in 1925 the duplicate amounted to $31,881,530. This is an increase of $3,832,630, if the figures are approved by the tax commission.

The duplicate will be given a hearing by the tax commission in Columbus, Monday, November 22 at 9 a. m. The commission will consider the values and re-adjustments occasioned by the first appraisal in sixteen years and it is possible the duplicate may be further raised.

The commission has the power to either lower or raise the duplicate to make the figures equitable with those of surrounding counties.

If the figures are approved as certified, real estate in Greene County, it is indicated by the appraisal, has increased in value twelve per cent on the average.

Auditor Wead estimates that adjustment of values in the twelve townships in the county taken as a whole, show a slight slump in property values, while to offset this small loss, village and Xenia property gained correspondingly.

The duplicate upon which taxes are based is for land valuations and land improvements.

Total property valuation for 1925 was practically the same as when the last general re-appraisal was conducted in 1910 due to the fact that individual improvements which raised the value of property were offset by destruction of property and deterioration during the sixteen-year period.

"PIG WOMAN" LEAVES HOSPITAL TO TELL HALL-MILLS STORY

Endangers Life By Ambulance Trip To Court Room

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—"I'm all right—I'm going to be strong. Don't you worry about me. I've got to tell what I know of this case—after that I don't care."

These are the words of Mrs. Jane Gibson, who is to make a dramatic appearance in court here today as the state's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial.

They were spoken to Police Inspector John J. Underwood, who, with Captain Harry Walsh, interviewed her in the Jersey City hospital, where she has been seriously ill.

She is coming to the court house here this morning from Jersey City, thirty miles away, in an ambulance and against the advice of six doctors who have been attending her. They fear she might suffer a relapse which quite possibly could result in her death.

But she has waived aside all suggestions that she remain in the hospital. She insisted she must come to Somerville and tell what she knows of the mysterious murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills. She is the only known "eye witness" of the murders. She has identified the three defendants, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, as the three persons she saw under the crab apple tree in De Russy's lane on the night of September 14, 1922. She is the state's vital witness.

It was feared a week or so ago that she would die and that her amazing story never would be told at the trial. Spectacular efforts were made by Prosecutor Alexander Simpson to have court transferred to her bedside in the hospital so that her testimony might be taken, but the court advised a delay to see if her condition improved sufficiently to enable her to testify. Her progress, however, was very slow. She is suffering from a complication of diseases which physicians say will ultimately result in her death. Only a few days ago, she underwent a blood transfusion.

The imminent appearance of Mrs. Gibson on the witness stand has figuratively set Somerville on its ears. It is the one subject of conversation in this little town of 6,000 population. There was an undercurrent of suppressed excitement early today in the vicinity of the court house among the curious crowd waiting for the arrival of the ambulance bearing the famous witness.

STAND IN LINE TO GET RID OF TICKETS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 18.—It is no uncommon sight to see thousands of persons standing in line waiting for tickets to a baseball game, prize fight or other event, but the procedure was reversed here today when 2,000 persons stood in line trying to get rid of their tickets—traffic summonses.

The motorists were the victims of a police foray last night, the second within a week and most of them were arrested for displaying improperly adjusted lights.

More than 4,000 drivers have been caught since the crusade began, last week, when 1,200 were ticketed during one night.

TWO NARROWLY MISS DEATH IN ACCIDENT

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 18.—Two persons narrowly escaped death near here today when a trolley car of the Cincinnati, Georgetown and Portsmouth spur line jumped the tracks while going down a steep hill near here and was practically demolished.

Fred Moore, operator of the car, and Dale Demaris, 19, the only passenger, were both seriously injured in the crash, according to first reports reaching here.

Demaris was suffering from an arm broken in four places and possible internal injuries. It was said, while Moore, although thought to have sustained internal injuries, was reported to be badly cut and bruised.

HOPE TO STRENGTHEN FARM LOAN BANKS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Legislation to strengthen federal supervision of joint stock land banks has been proposed to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon by the farm loan board, it was announced today.

Mellon said that no decision has been reached as to whether a recommendation will be made to congress.

The proposal resulted from an investigation of the operations of joint stock land banks conducted in St. Paul and Kansas City some months ago by the department of justice and the treasury. While some irregularities were found, it was said that none was of a serious nature.

WITNESS ARRESTED ON BIGAMY CHARGE

NEWPORT, Ky., Nov. 18.—Following her testimony given during a murder trial here yesterday, Virginia Hughes, of Cincinnati, was under arrest today on a charge of bigamy.

Virginia Hughes, alias Shanks, alias Audrey, alias McDonald, according to Commonwealth Attorney L. J. Diskin, who said the woman had obtained a license to marry Elmer McDonald before she had been divorced from Morris Shanks, both Kentuckians. From the witness stand the girl said she had also married a man by the name of Audrey.

POSTPONE FLIGHT OF GIANT PLANES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—The flight of the two giant planes to Hampton Roads, Va., from the navy yards here for the start of the flight to Pan-America was postponed today on account of unfavorable weather conditions over Chesapeake bay.

The planes are all ready for the take-off and will leave here tomorrow afternoon if weather conditions are favorable.

ANOTHER U. S. OPERA SINGER WINS

LOUISE LERCH, NEWEST AMERICAN SOPRANO OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA IS DOMESTIC. SHE DOES HER OWN COOKING, AS YOU SEE.

Exclusive Dispatch Copyright, 1926

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—More resounding setbacks are being given the tradition that America does not produce great opera singers.

Critics are singing the praises of Louise Lerch, 24-year-old soprano from Allentown, Pa., who had just added her name to the galaxy of native-born singers who add lustre to the Metropolitan, premier opera house of the world. The tradition is dying hard. Giulio Gatti Casazza is still skeptical. "Give me an American Caruso," he smiles.

With four Americans making their debut with the Metropolitan this season, and Marion Talley, Edward Johnson, Mary Lewis, Lawrence Tibbets, Dorothy Fletcher also of Allentown, Pa., Queena Mario and Louise Hunter of Ohio, Rafael Diaz of Texas, Rosa Ponselle of Connecticut, James Gordon of Detroit, and others to call upon, Signor Gatti should have no difficulty in obtaining an American cast for the American-great opera, "The King's Henchman," which has its premiere at the Metropolitan in February. Deems Taylor, former advertising man, is composer of the opera, and Edna St. Vincent Millay, noted poet, the librettist.

A few years ago Louise Lerch, now in her early twenties, was sitting in the junior choir of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Allentown, Pa. A vocal teacher in the local high school first saw the possibilities of her soprano voice and devoted much time to developing it. Her father, a former telegrapher, who is now in the insurance business, sent her to Philadelphia to study.

While engaged in study Miss Lerch toured Pennsylvania, singing in churches. She attracted the attention of Madame Marcelina Sembrich, famous Metropolitan diva of a former day, who brought about the final development of her voice.

Elda Vettori, also a soprano, another Metropolitan acquisition, has appeared extensively in America. In 1923 she made her operatic debut as Santuzza in Cavalleria Rusticana as a member of the San Carlo Opera company. At seventeen. She first sang in the local church choir. Four years ago Miss Attwood went to Europe to continue her studies. During this time she appeared with opera companies in Italy, France, Belgium and Switzerland. Recently she returned to America. Joseph MacPherson comes to the Metropolitan without having studied abroad. He comes from Nashville, Tenn., is married and has one child.

of the Home, in not allowing children to be "let out in homes, in order that they might obtain first-hand knowledge on the problems of life. "All such institutions as this, are devised to meet a need from the deficiency in the individual home," he said.

"The proper place for the child is in the individual home and social service workers today are thinking of the development of such ways as will maintain the proper individual homes." In closing he suggested a method of progress in developing social service in all such institutions so that these children of the best citizens shouldn't be penalized and that the old-time orphanage system shall continue to dwindle. The matter of keeping the child in the individual home is becoming more of a problem yearly, he said, and he also urged medical social service work at the Home, in which a woman co-worker would assist the physician in charge in obtaining the necessary data for the right environment for each child.

Dr. Graeme Mitchell, dean of pediatrics, College of Medicine, University of Cincinnati, agreed with Dr. Bachmeyer, and urged the "individualism" of each child in the Home. In the solution of the relative importance of heredity and environment, Dr. Mitchell said: "there is something we can do with environment and we must work for the proper environment with a foundation of data on heredity. We don't have to wait for the best equipment to do the best work, but carry on without it. There is a wonderful opportunity here for the study of adolescence, which has never been touched on in medicine. We must learn more," he declared. "Don't be discouraged if we don't get everything we are asking for, but do the best we can with what we have."

Lt. Col. T. F. Andrews, superintendent of the Home, declared that the encouragement noted among the physicians showed progress, the work of the institution. "Sometimes things seem dark, but we always take a new grip on ourselves and feel that our work is much worth while, in our endeavor to make men and women out of the boys and girls intrusted to our care," he said.

Dr. Greiwe, in closing the meeting, urged the doctors to become obsessed with the idea of "putting these bills over in the legislature."

Before the program of talks, the girls' orchestra gave a selection, "Just a Cottage Small," Miss Alice Philby gave a reading, "Foolish Questions," and the orchestra closed with a novelty number "Out in

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients. It is known as Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound and can be obtained at all drug stores for only 75 cents a bottle.

While gray faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. —Adv.

STATE OFFICERS OF D. A. R. ADDRESS MEET

The three chapters in Greene County of Daughters of the American Revolution, Georgia Slagle, Cedarville; Cedar Cliff, Cedarville; and Catherine Greeno, Xenia, were honored by the presence of Mrs. Herbert Backus, Columbus, state regent and the chairman of the Southwest district, Mrs. J. S. Heume, of Springfield, at a joint meeting at Trinity M. E. Church, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Backus told of the work that the national D. A. R. organization is doing in the Americanization of foreigners in this country and its assistance in the building up of the Southern mountain schools and marking and recording graves of Revolutionary soldiers.

One told of the transforming of a frenzied mob of foreigners detained at Ellis Island into an orderly group of people by giving them material of cloth and wool, sent in boxes by the various D. A. R. chapters, to keep them employed. She also outlined the program of the state organization for the next three years and urged the local chapter to assist in the plans.

Mrs. Heume pointed with pride to the work of the Southwest district and the spirit of co-operation showed her in her work.

A social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. V. F. Brown as hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. O. McCormick, Mrs. W. H. McGervey, and Mrs. H. S. LeSourd of Catherine Greene Chapter; Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Charles Ervin, Cedarville and Mrs. Robinson, of Jamestown chapter.

XENIA MAN MARRIED TO SPRINGFIELD GIRL

Mr. Charles Edward Payne, this city, and Miss Clarisse Margaret House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. House, 254 S. Lowry Ave., Springfield, were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, South Charleston, the Rev. Chas. Sultzbach officiating, Wednesday morning at 11:15 o'clock. Attendants were Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Littleton.

The bride wore a frock of Venetian blue satin, trimmed with metallic cloth, with a hat of cloth of gold and silver. Her traveling outfit included a tan silk frock, tan felt hat, and brown velvet coat, trimmed with mink.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne left immediately on a wedding trip through the East. After ten days they will return to Xenia to reside. Mr. Payne is a telegraph operator on the Pennsylvania Railroad here, and formerly resided in Yellow Springs.

SPRINGFIELD SPEAKER ON B. P. W. PROGRAM

Mr. Tracy E. Thompson, department of business administration, Wittenberg College, Springfield, will address Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, Thursday evening at the K. of P. Hall. His subject will be "Fickle Business" or "Wooing Prosperity."

Miss Helen Ford will sing "Honey Lou" theme song of the serial story appearing in The Gazette and The Republican and composed by Miss Juanita Rankin and Miss Alice Foley, local girls. Miss Rankin will play Miss Ford's accompaniment.

Hostesses for the evening are the Misses Virginia Fletcher, Nellie McKay, Clara Wright and Carrie Whitacre.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" if cross, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruity laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." —Adv.

OPTOMETRISTS PLAN MEETING IN DAYTON AT DINNER IN XENIA

Optometrists of Greene, Preble, Montgomery, Miami, Darke, Clark and Champaign Counties attended a dinner-meeting of Zone 9 of the Ohio State Optometric Association at Central High School Wednesday night.

More than fifty delegates attended the business meeting, last of the year and discussed plans for the annual convention of the state association in Dayton in the spring of 1927.

A number of women, wives of the delegates, also attended the business session to become acquainted and in order to be later appointed on sub-committees arranging for the convention.

Following a luncheon in the cafeteria a public meeting was held in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium. Dr. Clarence Kaufman, Cincinnati, governor of Zone 8, was the principal speaker at the open meeting.

He told of the effect of visual surveys conducted in certain manufacturing plants and declared statistics showed that after such examinations, production was boosted sometimes as high as twenty-eight per cent the following month. Dr. S. C. Philbrook, Piqua, chairman of the zone, presided. Those attending the session also witnessed the film "Through the Life's Windows." Members of the musical, dancing, and comedy

RHEUMATISM! What is it—anyway?

THAT awful agony of swollen joints and inflamed muscles—that miserable pain and torturous suffering, what is rheumatism—what is it?

Here's what it is: It is the result of waste products and impurities in the blood! Impurities that get the upper hand because the system is starving for want of healthy, rich, red blood!

But you just cleanse your blood and build up the red-blood-cells and watch the rheumatism vanish! Why, S. S. S. will aid Nature put so many millions of red-blood-cells in your system that the impurities that cause your rheumatism are driven out—they can't stand pure, healthy blood.

S. S. S. conquers rheumatism! The rich, red, fighting blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build brings ease and comfort to every sore, swollen tissue in your body.

And this great S. S. S. goes right on helping Nature build more and more red cells until your whole body is tingling with life and vibrating with vim, vigor and vitality. You feel like yourself again.

Get S. S. S. right now—build up your blood to where it is pure, red and healthy. S. S. S. is the sure way. All druggists sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

FALL

The period of four months which we call the season of "Autumn" or "Fall" really consists of two seasons, well marked off from each other; the former the season of harvest and vintage, the latter the season of the dying of the year, of the fall of the leaf. It is suggested that "Autumn" (from Sanscrit root which signifies "abundance" or "the harvest") would be the proper designation for the former; and "Fall" for the latter.

The literature of Autumn (the "Autumn" of our new division) is meager; in contrast to the literature of the fall of the year, which is sufficiently rich in several languages, especially the Chinese. Why the contrast? Why should the literature of Fall be richer than that of Autumn? Because it is the season of sadness, and sadness is much more potent to inspire song than gladness. "Nothing's so dainty sweet as lovely melancholy," says old John Fletcher. And better yet, Shelley: "The sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."

The greatest of Fall poems is that by Ou-yang Hsiu (flourished about 1000 A. D.), which describes the sudden coming of Fall. We quote, in part, Mr. Waley's translation, but substituting "Fall" for Waley's "Autumn":

"Master Ou-yang was reading his books at night when he heard a strange sound coming from the northwest. He paused and listened intently, saying to himself: 'How strange, how strange!' First there was a pattering and rustling; but suddenly this broke into a great churning and crashing, like the noise of waves that wake the traveler at night, when the wind and rain suddenly come; and where they lash the ship, there is a jangling and clanging as of metal against metal. I called to my boy, bidding him go out and see what noise this could be. The boy said: 'The moon and stars are shining; the Milky Way glitters in the sky. Nowhere is there any noise of men. The noise must be in the trees.' 'I-hi! alas!' I said, 'this must be the sound of Fall. Oh, why has Fall come? Her colors are mournful and pale. Her breath is shivering and raw, pricking men's skin and bones; her thoughts are desolate; her whisperings are sorrowful and cold, but her shouts are wild and angry. Pleasant grasses grew soft and green. Fair trees knit their shade and gave delight. Fall swept the grasses and their color changes; she met the trees, and their boughs were stripped. She is called 'the Doom-Spirit of Heaven and Earth'; for her thoughts are bent on stern destruction."

The only thing in English which gives us anything like the same feel of that sudden change from Autumn to Fall is the opening stanza of Shelley's Ode to the West Wind. No, there's a passage in Matthew Arnold's "Tristram and Iseult" in like sort. Look it up, reader, and be on the alert for that phenomenon so vividly described by Ou-yang Hsiu.

INTEGRITY OF COURTS

The resignation of Federal Judge George W. English has no doubt removed from senate records that rarest of spectacles, the trial of a federal judge on impeachment charges.

Only five times in the history of the republic has the senate been called into session to sit as a court and hear the evidence for and against a federal judge, and only once to try a similar case against a judge of the U. S. commerce court. Three times the verdict has been an acquittal, and three times the two-thirds vote stamped the accused as guilty, and brought his removal from office.

The charges preferred against Judge English, resulting in his resignation from the bench and the dropping of the impeachment proceedings almost on the eve of the trial, comes as another of those rare instances in American public life when the integrity of the court has been challenged to such an extent as to result in a movement to vacate the seat in question.

The record of the American courts is indeed, an enviable one. It bespeaks in a forceful manner the honesty and the integrity of the men who have been named to sit in judgment; for rare have been the occasions when any of those men have so forgotten their obligation and betrayed their trust that the senate of the United States has found itself compelled to remove them from office.

Bo-Broadway by VAN RAALTE ©1926

Exclusive Dispatch Copyright, 1926.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Before prohibition turned Broadway into a street of ginger ale and cigarette ads, "orange drink" stalls and frankfurter stands, it enjoyed a reputation for wildness.

It was the stamping ground for men and women of Bohemian tendencies who paid as they went or, taking their fun on tick, settled when pay day rolled around, if any.

At the time of which I speak the bark of the automobile had not yet been heard on Longacre square. Lizzie Ford's debut was still in the offing and clergymen were warning the faithful that they "couldn't serve God and skunk around on bicycles."

Where the tawdry red-and-green electric bulbs of Chinese restaurants flash on and off in dismal persistence, "gilded" lobster palaces reared imposing facades.

Broadway was Broadway, back in the days when the crayon portrait of Richard Mansfield adorned the theater lobby where now, on a gold leaf easel, flashes the melancholy mug of Mr. Charles Chaplin.

Broadway never claimed distinction as a rendezvous of saints. Its reputation rested solely on its ability to minister satisfactorily to bizarre appetites. It was never any trouble to show goods. You could encounter adventure in manifold guises, from a fight to a frolic. They aimed to please. A satisfied customer was their best advertisement and the "bust" was invariably worth the headache.

But all that's shored behind us, long ago and far away. Broadway today is a cheap edition of what Coney Island was before it got religion and joined the church.

Mazda Lane is a street given over to taxi drivers, deformed beggars, pants pressers out for a "lark," policemen and loose-lipped lads with limp cigarettes. Cheapness is its curse. The entertainment it purveys is cheap. The merchandise it displays is cheap. The coffee it sells is as rotten as the hooch and the smell would sicken a mongrel pup.

The gangster now holds sway where once the Pittsburgh millionaire dispensed largesse. "Diamond Jim" Brady has given place to Mike the Bite. Rector has abdicated to Nick the Greek.

A bank occupies a certain Broadway corner, where, in the old days, a beer and booze bazaar dispensed refreshment to the jaded traveler along Mazda Lane. In the entire course of its existence nothing of more than passing interest ever focused attention on that long forgotten irrigation bureau.

The other day an armored truck drew up before the bronze doors of the bank. The truck was equipped with a machine gun and had a dozen armed guards patrolled the sidewalks in front of the money house while a transfer of steel boxes, containing gold, was affected.

In the old days a scene like that on Broadway would have earned a "ribbon head" on every newspaper in town. Today it isn't worth even casual rehearsal.

Don't let anybody kid you about the "great white way." There ain't no such animal.

Mazda Lane is a stretch of territory less than a mile in length, dotted with little collar shops, cake and coffee plants, movie houses and soft drink stands, lighted by scores of blinding electric signs that blazon the virtues of soda pop and underwear.

"Broadway might interest for a few minutes a man who had never learned to read," was Chester-ton's comment after a brief stroll along The Alley.

When you hear a man under forty gurgling about the glories of Broadway you may be sure he is peddling a tradition. A lobster palce flopped the day the chop suey joint—the day the "orange drink" stall succeeded the gin mill—the day Mary Pickford supplanted Ada Rehan.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

There are several new and delicious recipes for preserves and marmalades which may be put up to advantage at this time of the year. One of these recipes includes our old holiday friend, the cranberry.

SPICED CRANBERRY JELLY

Pick over and wash one quart of cranberries. Add one cup of boiling water and cook until the berries are soft. Press through a sieve and add two cups of sugar, one-third cup of cold water, and a spice bag containing a piece of cinnamon, two dozen cloves and six allspice berries. Bring to the boiling point and simmer gently for about fifteen minutes. Add a few grains salt, turn into a mold and chill. Serve with any delicate meat.

APPLE GINGER

Wash, quarter, pare and core four apples. To five cups of apple add five cups of sugar, grated rind of one lemon and an inch of ginger root. Bring gradually to a boiling point and cook gently until apples are transparent. Stir frequently to avoid burning and seal in hot, sterilized jars.

DATE AND CRANBERRY MARMALADE

Simmer gently for twenty minutes one quart cranberries with one pound stoned dates and one pint of water. Press through sieve, add two cups of light brown sugar and cook about fifteen minutes longer.

Many Minds SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"It is a great mystery to me. I suppose it was given to me because I wrote nothing at all that year."—George Bernard Shaw, when informed he had been awarded Nobel literature prize for 1925.

"In the last eight years absolutely nothing has been done to promote peace. We sit here and deceive ourselves if we think anything—anything—has been done to lessen the possibility of war. War isn't guns. War isn't paraphernalia. War is hate. America is the most hated nation in the world."—Josephus Daniels, publisher, and former secretary of navy.

"The greatest missionary field in the world today is in the suburbs. When families move out to the suburbs they intend to keep on attending the old church in the city or join the local church. But there is so much to do about the new house. Sunday seems to be the only day when such things can be done. The newcomer finds the neighbors unusually neighborly. They love to play cards and dance. Saturday night seems to be the best night for those things and Sunday comes all too soon after. Again, life in the suburbs is apt to be so pleasant that one begins to wonder if, after all, the church is quite as necessary as it used to be."—The Rev. Dr. Arthur M. Ellis, at annual meeting of Congressional Home Boards.

Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king, who will no more be admonished. For out of prison he cometh to reign; whereas also he that is born in his kingdom cometh poor.

I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second child that shall stand up in his stead. There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them; they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes 4:13-16.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

TITLES AS SMOKE SCREENS

I often wonder what is about that causes my name to appear on so many kinds of sucker lists. I'm reluctant to believe that I'm any more glib than the average fellow and yet my mail is regularly cluttered with circulars for worthless stocks and all manner of plausible but foolish enterprises to catch the unwary.

This morning I received a letter from a publishing house and the man who signed the letter had added a "Ph. D." after his name, indicating that he regards his Ph. D. as of prime importance.

That made me at once suspicious and just for fun I took the trouble to look up the company this man works for. I learned that it is the kind of publishing concern commonly known as unethical, though a harsher term might be used. Their main business is with school teachers and others who write books of too inferior quality to interest legitimate publishers.

An unethical publisher will accept such a manuscript, provided that the author will pay in advance all costs of publication. These costs are enough to give the publisher a substantial immediate profit and he well knows that he will probably never dispose of many copies of the book after it is printed. In fact, he won't even make much effort to do so.

What I started to talk about, though, was the stupidity of the man who placed the Ph. D. after his signature, for that let the cat out of the bag.

A man of real consequence who is a doctor of philosophy never says much about it, because he is intelligent enough to know that it isn't of all-embracing importance—probably obtained by preparing an insane and futile thesis in a college, to be passed upon and approved by a group of old men with chin whiskers.

The man too eager to flaunt such a title is probably secretly ashamed either of his own shortcomings or those of the company with which he is identified. He is like the man, past middle age, who still wears a fraternity pin, or an extra large lodge emblem—because belonging to a certain "frat" or lodge is still to him the biggest thing he has ever done.

In other words, the man who brags about something trivial evidently hasn't anything better to brag about.

I notice, by the way, that men who had non-combatant commissions in the world war are the ones today most insistent upon being called by their military titles.

FIRST SCHOOL HOUSE

"The floor was made of slabs split from large timbers and made smooth on one side by a large broadaxe and these were laid on joists or sleepers and fastened down by wooden pins.

"The door was made from the same material as the floor, and was hung in places by wooden hinges and fastened together by wooden pins.

"The fireplace was made by cutting out a section of logs some five or six feet in length and by building up short pieces of timber outside as high as the joists at the point where the logs were cut, thus making a back wall and jambs, which were well-lined with clay and mortar mingled with straw to make it more cohesive.

"A chimney was built up from the back wall by using short split sticks which were covered from within and without by mortar similar to that which lined the fire place.

"This house was a type of those generally used in those days and as was common by judicious division of labor was completed in a single day. It is probable that William Jenkins was the first teacher in the house that I have described."

ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Better is a poor and a wise child than an old and foolish king, who will no more be admonished.

I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second child that shall stand up in his stead.

There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them; they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and vexation of spirit.—Ecclesiastes 4:13-16.

Before treating your feet, give them a good soaking in hot water, to which you have added a little borax. Then dry the feet thoroughly rubbing off any loose skin, especially between the toes. If you are treating calluses, soak your feet in a strong solution of magnesium sulphate (an ounce to a quart of water) for about twenty-five minutes. Then remove the loose callused skin with a pumice stone. Afterward, apply the following solution using a fine paint

Just AMONG US GIRLS

by Kathryn Kenney

"NECKS" BEST

The man makes the love and the woman stirs it up. Too many cooks spoil the broth and too many kisses spoil a girl. Stirring up is the only thing which keeps courtship from going to sugar. No cake, no roses above its hat, no baton, and that goes for the big league stuff, too.

A man never used to kiss a girl until he was engaged to her, now he waits until she is engaged to another man. The stories about "spooning," which used to circulate among men, are nothing compared to those which are told by the girls. A man is almost afraid to kiss a girl on his own hook for fear that he'll be landed by her line.

Men used to talk about girls who allowed themselves to be kissed, now they kiss those who allow themselves to be talked about. Turn about is fair play, especially if you turn quickly enough! This attitude on the part of the woman to check up on love-making is such a bad idea. The man who knows his onions has most of the fair sex crying for him. A man used to kiss and not bother about his method, but in these days of specialization a man needs a license to drive anyone to drink. The man who aspires to be the perfect lover must whisper sweet nothings which have a double meaning and he must know them both.

This is the age when the woman not only pursues, she takes a chase. A man may not like to have somebody hot on his trail, but it's not going to do him any good to wear snow shoes. Women are going after what they want, so when a man looks out for danger ahead all the curves are behind!

A man may like to do the chasing but woman has the head start on him. She is going after the thing she wants and she's gaining on it. Men are gradually giving in and giving out. They want to be masters of their own homes, but the woman carries the pass-key.

A poor girl used to live in fear and trembling after she had let a man kiss her. She knew that her kisses would soon be on every one's lips and that the results would be far-reaching as his arms.

A girl was known as a "kissing post" and there wasn't any hitching done there either! Now the girl who hasn't been kissed is rare and she is also spare!

Girls are figuring that turn about is fair play instead of "fair pay" as it used to be. The only thing that tells on a woman nowadays is time. The men don't dare, the woman's side of the story is already out and it isn't so much a case of letting a man kiss you as it is to make him think you're letting him.

At women's bridge parties in this fast day the chief topic of conversation is, "can so and so make love or could he be improved by the right direction?"

The man who kisses and tells has been lost in the din of the woman who kisses and yells. The girls decided that they were missing many a good bet so they've gone in for making petting popular. A man's kisses may not be anything to have about, but they will be, anyway!

A generation ago one who was smitten with tuberculosis, whether old or young, was almost certainly doomed, almost as certainly as if he were smitten with cancer. Nowadays the percentage of absolute cures is large, the percentage of retarded and restrained cases is larger.

Under favoring influences a tuberculosis subject may even remain at his home, may continue his work and the support of his family, while the lesions in his lungs, if not cured are at least held in check. It is not wonderful what positive progress has been made along the lines of treatment of this deadly disease.

And now like the cancer question it is becoming recognized even by the most conservative, that one of the most important means of attacking this or any other serious disease is by letting the people know what the disease really means and how they are to recognize it when first attacked by public education in treating disease, after a long period of disregard and disesteem is now becoming generally regarded as one of the most potent factors in overcoming it.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A. Z.: Can a truss be worn after an operation for hernia in each groin? I was operated upon eight years ago, when I was then sixty years of age, and the operation seemed to be successful, but the hernia has returned and my family object to another operation on account of my age.

Answer—Your age in itself is not an objection to a second operation and if you can get it tough with a good surgeon, he may be able to get a satisfactory result. If you decide that you will not have an operation I know of no reason why you may not wear a truss. Of course if the hernia is a large one it will be more difficult to hold it back than if it is small.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Confine your letter to fifty words and send stamped, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

It also emphasized the importance of the elimination of all infectious conditions and relief from physical and mental strains and worries to the utmost extent.

The important pronouncement was made as the judgment of the association that there is as yet no specific cure for tuberculosis, like anti-toxin for diphtheria, nor any absolute preventive like vaccination for small-pox. But it was distinctly affirmed that the disease is curable especially in its earlier stages, and publicity was desired that this important fact might be generally known.

I think this is a most conservative pronouncement for an organization which above all others is the authority par excellence upon the subject of tuberculosis.

Destructive as this disease is throughout the world it is known to be curable, perhaps even to a greater degree than the American Tuberculosis Association would lead the public to believe.

One has only to study the statistics of the disease for the last twenty-five years to realize the importance of the broadroads that have been made against its attack.

How to Achieve Beauty

WELL-GROOMED FEET IMPORTANT TO BEAUTY
Home Treatments for Calluses and Corns

You should do for you possibly can to keep your feet in good condition, but if, in spite of this care, your feet still cause you pain and discomfort, I would certainly suggest that you consult a reliable chiropodist. This advice is especially important, if you are troubled with calluses, corns or bunions.

However, in the event that the foot ailment is slight or if it is impossible for you to get to a chiropodist, you should treat your feet yourself in as nearly a scientific manner as possible. In order to properly do this it is well for you to have several instruments such as a nail clipper, nail scissors or short stout blades, pumice stone to rub down calluses and a corn file. A corn knife should not be used by an amateur.

Before treating your feet, give them a good soaking in hot water, to which you have added a little borax. Then dry the feet thoroughly rubbing off any loose skin, especially between the toes. If you are treating calluses, soak your feet in a strong solution of magnesium sulphate (an ounce to a quart of water) for about twenty-five minutes. Then remove the loose callused skin with a pumice stone. Afterward, apply the following solution using a fine paint brush: Alcohol, 3-12 drams; extract of cannabis indica, 10 grains; salicylic acid, 30 grains; collodion, 3-12 drams.

Any solution that is strong enough to act on calluses is too strong for the surrounding skin, therefore, apply the above solution with care only to the callus.

Corns develop from the small calluses on the toes. A callus on the toes, especially the little toe, thickens from constant irritation or pressure; then the central part of the callus begins to grow down into the sensitive skin, and, if allowed to continue causes intense pain. A hard corn forms on the outside of the toe, while a soft corn forms between the toes. A corn becomes a soft corn by the moisture between the toes.

There are several good corn cures procurable. They contain some substance that acts on the corn and while the outside skin is protected, the corn at the same time is separated from contact with the shoe and socking by a felt disc or something similar.

Another method of home treatment for corns consists in paring off the outer callus with a blade that has been sterilized, and then painting the center of the corn, with the following mixture: Salicylic acid, 1 dram; extract of cannabis indica, 10 grains; ether, 2 drams; flexible collodion, 6 drams.

SOPHIE IRENE LOEB Says

THE TEST OF LOVE

Again they quarreled,
And each went his and her miserable way.
Knowing full well that somehow, someday, soon
They must come together again.
With the bonds that bound them—unbreakable,
Yet, doubt forever entered the heart of each.
And in his suffering he sought a sage,
One world-wise, who had lived over much.
And the unhappy one cried,
"Why is it, that one must bear such pain and heartache?
And mostly because of a trifling thing.
Is it possible that the golden thread of true love
Can be broken so easily?
And what of the age-old beliefs
That real love can never die?"
And the answer came:
"Know ye not, that more than anything in the world,
Love is forever tested,
Since it forever hungers for the perfect thing,
With human frailties, human sins.
Be satisfied, ye who love,
With the average share of ecstasy.
Since no man can measure
The greatness of his love
Unless he meets its possible loss.
'Tis a Wise Power that tempered the spirit of love,
So that it can bear and forbear
Since forever must there be reckoning.
Day by day love is forever on trial.
Until the day of death."

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

by Marjorie K. Rawlings

HOUSEHOLD ARITHMETIC

I know but little algebra,
Division seems like Greek,
But I can tell how many pies
Go into half a week!

Subtraction makes me dizzy,
And leaves my mind bereft—
But when a roast is carved, I know
How many meals are left!

I know how many whites of eggs
Make up an angel cake.
I multiply my spice and flour
With never a mistake.

I cannot add my check-book right,
My monthly sums are worse—
But I can figure chicken meals
Out of a corned-beef purse!

Every housewife probably has some pet activity she would like to see glorified. Drop a line to Mrs. Rawlings, care of this paper, and tell her about it.

SEVEN CENTRAL HIGH SENIORS PLAY LAST TIME AT WILMINGTON

Seven members of the Central High School grid squad have reached the point in their scholastic football careers where they will trot out on the field for the last time in the Wilmington game Friday afternoon.

These seven include Captain Max Marshall, halfback, William Graham, tackle, Fred Smith, full back and Robert Butts, end, all regulars; and Homer Henrie, Halle Hill and Arthur Haverstick, substitutes. Harold Hunt, manager, also is a senior.

These boys will don the mole-skins for the last time and consequently will strive to put forth their best efforts to wind up the season with a victory over Xenia's most ancient and honorable foe, Wilmington.

ANTIOCH ARRANGES AMBITIOUS BASKET SCHEDULE FOR YEAR

An ambitious basketball schedule of fifteen games has been arranged for the 1926-27 season at Antioch College with the possibility another contest will be added to the list, according to an announcement by Coach Kennedy Wednesday.

Nine games will be played on foreign courts and six and possibly seven on the home floor. Division A and Division B students will divide the schedule. Division A playing the first three games, Division B the next six with A Division finishing the schedule.

The season opens December 8, when the school helps Cedarville College dedicate its new gymnasium and closes March 2 with the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. at the Queen City. There is a possibility a return game will be played with Cedarville at Yellow Springs. One game, the date with Muskingum at Yellow Springs, January 17, will be played in the afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of the evening.

The schedule follows:
December 8—Cedarville away.
December 11—Muskingum away.
December 15—Wilmington at home.
January 8—Miami away.
January 11—Capital at home.
January 17—Muskingum at home.
January 21—Bowling Green away.
January 23—Ashland at home.
February 1—Dayton away.
February 12—Bowling Green at home.
February 18—Capital at Columbus.
February 19—Ashland away.
February 24—Wilmington away.
February 26—Dayton at home.
March 2—Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. away.

CEDARVILLE PLANS TO DEDICATE NEW GYM DECEMBER 8

If present tentative plans are carried out, Cedarville College will dedicate its new $23,000 gymnasium, rapidly nearing completion, December 8 when the college basketball quintet meets its ancient rival, Antioch College, in the opening home game of the 1926-27 season. It is announced.

The new gymnasium for which $23,000 has been expended for modern improvements and equipment, has been in the process of construction during the summer months and is practically ready for occupancy except for finishing touches on the floor and erection of goals.

Coach Borst is preparing a schedule for the approaching cage season but several of the games booked are only tentative dates. It is certain the college will open its season December 3, playing Earlham College at Earlham.

BOWLING

Greene County Lumber Co. bowlers lost a little ground in the Xenia Bowling League race by losing one game in three to the last-place Artesians in a match Wednesday night.

Members of both teams rolled at the peak of form and every valiant effort recorded good scores. Box score:

No More Piles

THOUSANDS BLESS DR. LEONHARDT, THE PHYSICIAN WHO DISCOVERED THIS COMMON SENSE REMEDY

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubt or delay, Sayre's Drug Store and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

Thus Central will not be as hard hit by graduation as is sometimes the case. Gibney and Morton will again be available in the backfield next year, while Coach Kolb will have but one end and one tackle position to fill on the line.

The Wilmington battle begins at 2:30 o'clock and will be played on the college gridiron in that city. Admission will be 50 cents to the public, 25 cents to students and 20 cents to grade pupils, it is announced.

The rival eleven are assured of officiating of the highest class with the announcement that the popular Dr. Dave Reese, Dayton, will referee.

PEDESTRIAN HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

John Christy, 65, former stock buyer, who resided for many years at Bowersville, is in a serious condition in a Springfield hospital from injuries sustained Tuesday night when struck by an auto in that city.

He suffered four broken ribs, and it is feared one lung is punctured. He also has a wound on his head and serious leg injuries. Mr. Christy was crossing the street near the traction depot, on Fountain Ave., it is said, when he was knocked down by a car driven by a woman whose name was not learned.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva Porter, 54, who passed away at her home on Thornhill Ave., Wednesday, will be held at the residence Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Remains will be shipped to the home of her mother, Mrs. Allen Beard, Liberty, Ind., early Friday morning. Interment will be made in that city.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

ONE BOY GAINED 11 POUNDS IN 7 WEEKS AND IS NOW STRONG AND HEALTHY

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing help like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, sugar coated and as easy to take as candy.

One boy gained eleven and one-half pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for sixty cents at Sayre's Drug Store and all druggists and money back if not satisfied—always insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine. (Adv.)

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS
If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines. Instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS
If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines. Instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

HUMAN NATURE

On the half shell

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

SUCCESS IN CRIME

It would just tickle New York's police commissioner to learn that he could get denizens of the underworld to understand that crime does not pay. Every little while he craves to print with an interview stressing the stupidity of young men who desert probity for lawlessness to satisfy an ambition to procure money without working for it.

In a recent interview he said: "I can't see why it doesn't sink in to the brains of young men who want 'easy money,' that there's nothing in crime. You hear a lot of talk about the 'big money' crooks get away with. That's all bunk. The criminals I have encountered since I have been police commissioner have nothing to show for their burglaries and holdups. It's only one criminal in a million who gets away with it."

The commissioner overlooks the fact that in crime, as in other forms of human endeavor, there are failures and successes. The country is full of successful crooks who are rolling in wealth. They will never be caught because they mix their activities with brains. The average type of criminal with whom the police deals, is the moron—the broad shouldered, bull-necked husky who never should have been brought into the world in the first place and who, finding himself here, unequipped mentally and morally for the struggle that faces him, takes the "easiest way" out.

There are more grafting politicians, corrupt judges, dishonest advertisers, crooked cops and short weight prize sellers in the land than there are safe blowers, stick-up men and pickpockets.

One dishonest lawyer is a worse menace to a community than a dozen yeggs and petty larceny thieves. The lawyer doesn't get caught. He has brains enough to dodge the penalty of his wrong doing. The dull witted yegg, invariably lands in a cell. And when he is safely tucked away for a term of one to twenty years, some moralist points to him and says: "You see, crime never pays."

We know a judge one time who presided over a criminal court. He was a crook if ever there was one. He had earned the judicial monkey fur by years of compromise. We have heard him sentence men to long terms in prison and we have listened while he hammered golden grains of morality into sheets of infinite platitudes.

Being a judge he was invariably addressed as "Your Honor." Many and many a time we've heard him say: "Crime doesn't pay."

Certainly crime pays. It pays if it is indulged in with intelligence. If crime ceased tomorrow to pay, three-quarters of the reputations in New York would blow up with a concussion that would be felt all the way from Dan to Deersheba.

Intelligence is the only thing that ultimately reaps dividends. "I have encountered many wicked men in my time," said Stevenson "and I have met many fools; but I have observed that the fools were the first to encounter penalties."

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS IF BLADDER BOthers OR BACK HURTS

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. —Adv.

STORK CIRCLES U. S. WARSHIP, DROPS TRIPLETS

THE MALANEYS AND THEIR CHILDREN

EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH, COPY-RIGHT, 1926

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 18.—It is known that James C. Malaney and the Missus, of Burlington, Vt., the town where the president's wife played as a girl, have presented to the United States navy its first triplets.

Not all boys eligible for membership in Uncle Sam's sea forces, to be sure; yet the first triplets born in the service.

Strangely enough to a young couple whose finances would not easily permit an increase of this size in the family, the babes—James C. Jr., Patricia Anne and Curtis Lord—have brought greater prosperity than they had ever enjoyed.

Civilian and military San Diego has beaten the Malaney path smooth, bearing gifts to the mother and the babes. Bottles, clothing, cribs—finally $1,200 in cash from a "triplet benefit."

"We knew when we came west

we would have a good future," said Mrs. Malaney, "but we didn't dream of such notoriety as the babies are bringing us."

Malaney, a quartermaster, first class, aboard the submarine S-28, brought his wife and baby Blanche, then six months old, west eighteen months ago from Burlington, where Mrs. Malaney had spent the winter while her husband was with the fleet at Panama. Her introduction to San Diego was not favorable, for on

The Theatre

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Probably you've often wondered how it is that a feminine player can weep genuine tears in a motion picture. Or possibly you are one who believes that an onion is concealed in a handkerchief or drops put into the eyes. Perhaps some players have to resort to these mechanical ways of producing liquid grief, but the good ones do not. In nine cases out of ten when you see a feminine player weeping on the screen, her tears are genuine.

But do you actually know how it is that she is made to weep?

I know one very prominent player who is taken aside by the director just prior to the big scene in which the star has to turn on the waterworks.

"Now listen," the director tells her, "the whole picture depends on this scene. If you flop the picture flops. And believe me if you do you're through with motion pictures. You've been sliding anyway; you've been terrible in your last pictures and your contract is expiring. This is your last chaffee to show that you are any good."

By that time the young woman is getting ready to burst out crying anyway and with the aid of soft music she is worked to just the right emotional pitch.

I know another director who takes the young woman in question aside and, talking gently to her brings back some of her girlhood memories. Possibly it is the death of her mother. Or perhaps her first big disappointment in life. He pulls her mind back into her youth and invariably it produces the desired results. One young woman has to be told how good she is. The director tells her that there is no one like her and that he knows that she can do anything.

One of the few actresses who can make the tears flow seemingly at will is one you'd least expect it from. She is Lois Wilson who usually takes parts that do not require weeping. I watched her on the set the other day when she was making a court room scene for the picture "New York." She takes the part of the young society girl who marries Ricardo Cortez, an East Side dance hall musician who rises to fame as a composer. He is accused of a murder and put on trial for his life and it is when Miss Wilson is on the witness stand that she made a hardboiled studio crew grow tense and lumps come into their throats. I have never seen a ready-made crying spell to equal hers. Luther Reed, the director, talked with her before she went on the stand but I doubt if he did any more than impress her with the importance of the scene.

Recently D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" was revived by the Film Arts Guild here and all the newspaper boys and girls printed stories that D. W. was going to see the picture again in person. He certainly has cause not to forget it. Considerable publicity was given the showing and it looks now as though

HONEY LOU

by Beatrice Burton
author of "LOVE BOUND" and "HER MAN" ETC.

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC., 1926

"CHECK OUT BEFORE YOU'RE WISHED OUT—THAT'S MY ADVICE," MARGRET SAID.

CHAPTER XVI

Honey Lou gave her head a shake of sheer exasperation.

"Please come away, Margaret!" she whispered, "Please!"

But Margaret only gazed at her with the far-away look of a person who is listening to something else.

Honey Lou turned to go down the stairs. Then suddenly she stopped and listened, too. Was that Jack Wallack's voice, coming from behind the closed door of "Gumpy's" office? Was it?

—It was!

Then, as she stood there without moving a muscle, she heard another voice. The soft, sweet, clear voice of Angela Allen.

Honey Lou could not make out what she was saying. She could hear only the low round tones that carried like the sound of a silver bell.

What were they doing there together? Jack and Angela—there in the deserted offices of the mills? And on Saturday afternoon, of all times?

"Hm-m—" she sighed. And, then startled by the sound of her own voice, she flew on down the stairs.

She reached the taxicab just as Margaret came out of the grim-looking old building behind her. "Arbor street—Arbor street," she rapped out to the taxi driver. "And hurry!"

She wanted to get out of that street—away from the mills—as fast as she could. Before Jack and Angela should look out a window, or come down the stairs, and see her and Margaret there.

"It was Jack, and—some girl, wasn't it?" she asked, turning her wide brown eyes to Margaret.

Her sister set her firm lips, and nodded.

"It was Jack Wallack and your dear friend, Angela," she said in her downright way. "You heard them, didn't you?"

"I heard their voices, but I didn't try to hear what they said," Honey Lou answered. "Oh, Margaret, really it was dreadful of you to listen in on them, the way you did—but tell me what they said!"

Margaret burst out laughing. "No, indeed, Miss Holier-Than-Thou," she said, "if you thought it was awful of me to listen, I certainly am not going to tell you what I heard."

And the more Honey Lou coaxed and begged her to tell, the more she shook her head and refused to say a word.

"What I can't understand is what they were doing down at the mills at that time of day. On Saturday afternoon, too," Honey Lou said thoughtfully, an hour later when she sat at the little table in their room, doing Margaret's nails for her. "I wonder if 'Gumpy' was in the office with them?"

"No, he wasn't. I can tell you that much," Margaret replied promptly. "They were all alone."

Honey Lou glanced up quickly. "How could you tell that they were?"

"Oh—I could," Margaret said, "raving down at her nails. 'Now, Honey Lou, don't try to pump me, because I'm not going to tell you what I heard in that office today. But I'll say this much—Don't have anything more to do with Jack Wallack. He's going to marry that Allen girl, just as sure as fate. And I'd check out of the whole affair before I was wished out, if I were you. Now, that's my advice to you. You can take it or leave it.'"

Honey Lou did neither. She simply thought it over carefully. She thought it over for two or three days, without coming to any conclusion at all.

Then three more days went by. Three days more, and not a word from Jack. Not a word. Not a sign. Not a look.

"Perhaps he's still peeved because Steve Mayhew had been here to see me that last night he came," Honey Lou debated with herself. "Perhaps he just doesn't care for me any more. Perhaps Angela was right when she said that he never did for any girl very long."

"Well, I'm not going to worry about it," she made up her mind sensibly, at last. "I should make myself unhappy and get a wrinkle!"

That night she went to the movies with her mother and Margaret, and did not think of Jack Wallack more than two dozen times during the two-hour program.

There was a big sign in the lobby when they went out of the theater, and they stopped to read it:

"STUNT NIGHT TOMORROW," it read.

"CASH PRIZES FOR AMATEURS IN BIG CHARLESTON CONTEST"

Underneath this legend a single sentence was printed in smaller letters: "Entrants please leave their names with ticket seller."

Honey Lou laughed. "What are you giggling about?" Margaret asked her sharply.

"There's nothing so funny about a Charleston contest."

"Oh, isn't there?" Honey Lou chuckled. "Well, there is about this one, if you only know it. Let's come tomorrow night and see it."

But the next night instead of coming home, she telephoned Mrs. Huntley from the office.

"I'm working late," she told her. "I'll meet you and Margaret at the show. Save a seat for me."

Steve Mayhew came to the house on Saturday night for supper, as he nearly always did.

"Where's Honey Lou?" was almost the first question that he asked, when he came in with his arms full of bundles. Candy for Honey Lou. Flowers for Mrs. Huntley. An armful of magazines for Margaret.

"She's not coming home for supper. We're going to meet her at the movies," Mrs. Huntley answered him. "Steve, these flowers are perfectly beautiful. But you ought not to spend your money on them."

She buried her nose in the big bouquet of larkspur and yellow roses that he had brought for her. "Aren't they lovely, Margaret?"

"Lovely," Margaret echoed. But she was not looking at the flowers. Her steady eyes had never left Steve Mayhew's face since he had come into the room.

"Whom is Honey Lou having supper with—Jack Wallack?" he asked her. And, still watching him closely, she shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know," she said. "I don't imagine so, though. She's going to meet us at seven-thirty at the theater."

There was a queer puzzled frown on her face as she walked out into the kitchen and put the teakettle on the stove.

At seven-thirty the three of them were in the packed theater.

At eight-thirty the feature picture had faded out and left the screen dark. The red velvet curtain rolled itself down to the floor. The footlights flashed up like little suns.

"I wonder where Honey Lou is," Mrs. Huntley said, turning in her seat to look for her. "She said she'd meet us here at half past seven. Steve, you go out into the lobby and see if she's waiting there for us, by any chance."

"No, she's not out there," he answered. "She's probably having such a good time with Wallack that she can't tear herself away."

There was a sharp edge to his voice.

"What makes you so sure she's with him?" Margaret asked him, as he dropped down into his seat beside her. "I don't believe she ever sees him any more. She hasn't mentioned his name to me for days and days."

As she spoke, she gave him another long watchful look from the tail of her eye.

The first of the Charleston dancers came bounding out upon the stage. He was a boy, a pink-cheeked youngster dressed in the stars and stripes of Uncle Sam.

He was followed by twin girls of fifteen or sixteen, who kept getting out of step and giggling about it.

Then into the make-believe sunrise of the footlights flashed a swift little figure, all in white, right down to her twinkling toes.

Her eyes danced, her teeth flashed and she laughed as she came to the center of the little stage and began to Charleston to the stirring music of the song called "Baby Face."

"Good Lord!" Steve Mayhew said aloud.

"Harriet Louise Huntley!" gasped her mother, half under her breath. "Oh, Margaret, how could she do such a thing!"

Her hand groped for Margaret's and held it tight. Her stricken eyes followed every movement of the little white figure on the stage. Honey Lou could dance. Dancing came as naturally to her as breathing. And she had a perfect sense of rhythm.

But it wasn't her dancing that drew the crowd forward in their seats, and held their eyes, and kept them breathlessly silent.

It was Honey Lou, herself, who did that. She was embodied joy and youth as she flashed from one side of the stage to the other, doing the mad, half-civilized dance. She was having the time of her life, and the crowd knew it, and felt it.

And then she began to sing. "Baby face—You got the cutest little baby face," sang Honey Lou, and the crowd began to sway ever so slightly in time to the music.

Honey Lou laughed at them, and they laughed back at her. She held out her slender arms to them as she sang on:

"There's not another one could take your place."

"Baby face—My poor heart is jumping, you sure have got 'em thumping."

"Baby face—Then all at once she stopped singing. She stopped dancing. The smile faded in her eyes, and the laughter died on her red mouth.

"Stage fright," Steve Mayhew whispered to Margaret.

But Margaret shook her head. Her eyes had followed Honey Lou's frightened, bewildered gaze, and she was still looking over her shoulder.

Three or four rows behind her, full in the radiance that poured out from the stage, sat Jack Wallack. His eyes were straight ahead of him, fixed on the red velvet curtain where the spotlight still burned like an enormous bull's eye. As Margaret watched him, he got up, and left the theater.

Honey Lou quits her job in tomorrow's installment of "HONEY LOU."

LOUISE LERCH, NEWEST AMERICAN SOPRANO OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA IS DOMESTIC. SHE DOES HER OWN COOKING, AS YOU SEE.

Exclusive Dispatch Copyright, 1926.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—More resounding setbacks are being given the tradition that America does not produce great opera singers. Critics are singing the praises of Louise Lerch, 24-year-old soprano from Allentown, Pa., who had just added her name to the galaxy of native-born singers who add lustre to the Metropolitan, premier opera house of the world. The tradition is dying hard. Giulio Gatti Casazza is still skeptical. "Give me an American Caruso," he smiles.
With four Americans making their debut with the Metropolitan this season, and Marion Talley, Edward Johnson, Mary Lewis, Lawrence Tibbett, Dorothy Flexer or also of Allentown, Pa., Queen Mario and Louise Hunter of Ohio, Rafael Diaz of Texas, Rosa Ponselle of Connecticut, James Gordon of Detroit, and others to call upon, Signor Gatti should have no difficulty in obtaining an American cast for the American-created opera, "The King's Henchman," which has its premiere at the Metropolitan in February. Deems Taylor, former advertising man, is composer of the opera, and Edna St. Vincent Millay, noted poet, the librettist.
A few years ago Louise Lerch, now in her early twenties, was sitting in the junior choir of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Allentown, Pa. A vocal teacher in the local high school first saw the possibilities of her soprano voice and devoted much time to developing it. Her father, a former telegrapher, who is now in the insurance business, sent her to Philadelphia to study.
While engaged in study Miss Lerch toured Pennsylvania, singing in churches. She attracted the attention of Madame Marcella Sembrich, famous Metropolitan diva of a former day, who brought about the final development of her voice.
Elda Vettori, also a soprano, another Metropolitan acquisition, has appeared extensively in America. In 1923 she made her operatic debut as Santuzza in Cavalleria Rusticana as a member of the San Carlo Opera company. At

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients. It is known as Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound and can be obtained at all drug stores for only 75 cents a bottle.

While gray faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. —Adv.

seventeen. She first sang in the local church choir.
Four years ago Miss Attwood went to Europe to continue her studies. During this time she appeared with opera companies in Italy, France, Belgium and Switzerland. Recently she returned to America.

of the Home, in not allowing children to be "let out in homes, in order that they might obtain first-hand knowledge on the problems of life. "All such institutions as this, are devised to meet a need from the deficiency in the individual home," he said.
"The proper place for the child is in the individual home and social service workers today are thinking of the development of such ways as will maintain the proper individual homes." In closing he suggested a method of progress in developing social service in all such institutions so that these children of the best citizens shouldn't be penalized and that the old-time orphanage system shall continue to dwindle. The matter of keeping the child in the individual home is becoming more of a problem yearly, he said, and he also urged medical social service work at the Home, in which a woman co-worker would assist the physician in charge in obtaining the necessary data for the right environment for each child.

Dr. Graeme Mitchell, dean of pediatrics, College of Medicine, University of Cincinnati, agreed with Dr. Bachmeyer, and urged the "individualism" of each child in the Home. In the solution of the relative importance of heredity and environment, Dr. Mitchell said: "there is something we can do with environment and we must work for the proper environment with a foundation of data on heredity. We don't have to wait for the best equipment to do the best work, but carry on without it. There is a wonderful opportunity here for the study of adolescence, which has never been touched on in medicine. We must learn more," he declared. "Don't be discouraged if we don't get everything we are asking for, but do the best we can with what we have."

Lt. Col. T. F. Andrews, superintendent of the Home, declared that

STATE OFFICERS OF D. A. R. ADDRESS MEET

The three chapters in Greene County of Daughters of the American Revolution, George Starke, Cedarville; Cedar Cliff, Cedarville and Catherine Greene, Xenia, were honored by the presence of Mrs. Herbert Backus, Columbus, state regent and the chairman of the Southwest district, Mrs. J. S. Heume, of Springfield, at a joint meeting at Trinity M. E. Church, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Backus told of the work that the national D. A. R. organization is doing in the Americanization of foreigners in this country and its assistance in the building up of the Southern mountain schools and marking and recording graves of Revolutionary soldiers.

One told of the transforming of a frenzied mob of foreigners detained at Ellis Island into an orderly group of people by giving them material of cloth and wool sent in boxes by the various D. A. R. chapters, to keep them employed. She also outlined the program of the state organization for the next three years and urged the local chapter to assist in her plans.

Mrs. Heume pointed with pride to the work of the Southwest district and the spirit of co-operation shown in her work.

A social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. V. F. Brown as hostess, assisted by Mrs. J. O. McCormick, Mrs. W. H. McGervey, and Mrs. H. S. LeSourd of Catherine Greene Chapter; Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Charles Ervin, Cedarville and Mrs. Robinson, of Jamestown chapter.

XENIA MAN MARRIED TO SPRINGFIELD GIRL

Mr. Charles Edward Payne, this city, and Miss Clarissa Margaret House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House, 254 S. Lowry Ave., Springfield, were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, South Charleston, the Rev. Chas. Sultzbaugh officiating, Wednesday morning at 11:15 o'clock. Attendants were Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Littleton.

The bride wore a frock of Venetian blue satin, trimmed with metallic cloth, with a hat of cloth of gold and silver. Her traveling outfit included a tan silk frock, tan felt hat, and brown velvet coat, trimmed with mink. Mr. and Mrs. Payne left immediately on a wedding trip through the East. After ten days they will return to Xenia to reside. Mr. Payne is a telegraph operator on the Pennsylvania Railroad here, and formerly resided in Yellow Springs.

SPRINGFIELD SPEAKER ON P. W. PROGRAM

Mr. Tracy E. Thompson, department of business administration, Wittenberg College, Springfield, will address Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, Thursday evening at the K. of P. Hall. His subject will be "Fickle Business" or "Voicing Prosperity."

Helen Ford will sing "Honey Lou" theme song of the serial story appearing in The Gazette and The Republican and composed by Miss Juanita Rankin and Miss Alice Foley, local girls. Miss Rankin will play Miss Ford's accompaniment.

Hostesses for the evening are the Misses Virginia Fletcher, Nellie McKay, Clara Wright and Carrie Whitacre.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" if cross, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruitly laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." —Adv.

OPTOMETRISTS PLAN MEETING IN DAYTON AT DINNER IN XENIA

Optometrists of Greene, Preble, Montgomery, Miami, Darke, Clark and Champaign Counties attended a dinner-meeting of Zone 9 of the Ohio State Optometric Association at Central High School Wednesday night.

More than fifty delegates attended the business meeting, last of the year, and discussed plans for the annual convention of the state association in Dayton in the spring of 1927.

A number of women, wives of the delegates, also attended the business session to become acquainted and in order to be later appointed on sub-committees arranging for the convention.

Following a luncheon in the cafeteria a public meeting was held in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium. Dr. Clarence Kaufman, Cincinnati, governor of Zone 8, was the principal speaker at the open meeting.

He told of the effect of visual surveys conducted in certain manufacturing plants and declared statistics showed that after such examinations, production was boosted sometimes as high as twenty-eight per cent the following month. Dr. S. C. Philbrook, Piqua, chairman of the zone, presided. Those attending the session also witnessed the film "Through Life's Windows." Members of the musical, dancing, and comedy

RHEUMATISM!

What is it—anyway?

THAT awful agony of swollen joints and inflamed muscles—that miserable pain and torturous suffering, we call rheumatism—what is it?

Here's what it is: It is the result of waste products and impurities in the blood! Impurities that get the upper hand because the system is starving for want of healthy, rich, red blood!

But you just cleanse your blood and build up the red-blood-cells and watch the rheumatism vanish! Why, S. S. S. will aid Nature put so many millions of red-blood-cells in your system that the impurities that cause your rheumatism are driven out—they can't stand pure, healthy blood.

S. S. S. conquers rheumatism! The rich, red, fighting blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build brings ease and comfort to every sore, swollen tissue in your body.

And this great S. S. S. goes right on helping Nature build more and more red cells until your whole body is tingling with life and vibrating with vim, vigor and vitality. You feel like yourself again.

Get S. S. S. right now—build up your blood to where it is pure, red and healthy. S. S. S. is the sure way.

FALL

The period of four months which we call the season of "Autumn" or "Fall" really consists of two seasons, well marked off from each other; the former the season of harvest and vintage, the latter the season of the dying of the year, of the fall of the leaf. It is suggested that "Autumn" (from Sanscrit root which signifies "abundance" or "the harvest") would be the proper designation for the former; and "Fall" for the latter.

The literature of Autumn (the "Autumn" of our new division) is meager; in contrast to the literature of the fall of the year, which is sufficiently rich in several languages, especially the Chinese. Why the contrast? Why should the literature of Fall be richer than that of Autumn? Because it is the season of sadness, and sadness is much more potent to inspire song than gladness. "Nothing's so dainty sweet as lovely melancholy," says old John Fletcher. And better yet, Shelley: "The sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought."

The greatest of Fall poems is that by Ou-yang Hsiu (flourished about 1000 A. D.), which describes the sudden coming of Fall. We quote, in part, Mr. Waley's translation, but substituting "Fall" for Waley's "Autumn":

"Master Ou-yang was reading his books at night when he heard a strange sound coming from the northwest. He paused and listened intently, saying to himself: 'How strange, how strange!' First there was a pattering and rustling; but suddenly this broke into a great churning and crashing, like the noise of waves that wake the traveler at night, when the wind and rain suddenly come; and where they lash the ship, there is a jangling and clanging as of metal against metal. I called to my boy, bidding him go out and see what noise this could be. The boy said: 'The moon and stars are shining; the Milky Way glitters in the sky. Nowhere is there any noise of men. The noise must be in the trees.' 'Hsi! alas!' I said, 'this must be the sound of Fall. Oh, why has Fall come? Her colors are mournful and pale. Her breath is shivering and raw, pricking men's skin and bones; her thoughts are desolate; her whisperings are sorrowful and cold, but her shouts are wild and angry. Pleasant grasses grew soft and green. Fair trees knit their shade and gave delight. Fall swept the grasses and their color changes; she met the trees, and their boughs were stripped. She is called 'the Doom-Spirit of Heaven and Earth'; for her thoughts are bent on stern destruction.'"

The only thing in English which gives us anything like the same feel of that sudden change from Autumn to Fall is the opening stanza of Shelley's Ode to the West Wind. No, there's a passage in Matthew Arnold's "Tristram and Iseult" in like sort. Look it up, reader, and be on the alert for that phenomenon so vividly described by Ou-yang Hsiu.

INTEGRITY OF COURTS

The resignation of Federal Judge George W. English has no doubt removed from senate records that rarest of spectacles, the trial of a federal judge on impeachment charges.

Only five times in the history of the republic has the senate been called into session to sit as a court and hear the evidence for and against a federal judge, and only once to try a similar case against a judge of the U. S. commerce court. Three times the verdict has been an acquittal, and three times the two-thirds vote stamped the accused as guilty, and brought his removal from office.

The charges preferred against Judge English, resulting in his resignation from the bench and the dropping of the impeachment proceedings almost on the eve of the trial, comes as another of those rare instances in American public life when the integrity of the court has been challenged to such an extent as to result in a movement to vacate the seat in question.

The record of the American courts is indeed, an enviable one. It speaks in a forceful manner the honesty and the integrity of the men who have been named to sit in judgment; for rare have been the occasions when any of those men have so forgotten their obligation and betrayed their trust that the senate of the United States has found itself compelled to remove them from office.

Bo-Broadway by VAN RAALTE ©1926

Exclusive Dispatch Copyright, 1926.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Before prohibition turned Broadway into a street of ginger ale and cigarette ads, "orange drink" stalls and frankfurter stands, it enjoyed a reputation for wildness.

It was the stamping ground for men and women of Bohemian tendencies who paid as they went or, taking their fun on tick, settled when pay day rolled around, if any.

At the time of which I speak the bark of the automobile had not yet been heard on Longacre square. Lizzie Ford's debut was still in the offing and clergymen were warning the faithful that they "couldn't serve God and skunk on bicycles."

Where the tawdry red-and-green electric bulbs of Chinese restaurants flash on and off in dismal persistence, "gilded" lobster palaces reared imposing facades.

Broadway was Broadway, back in the days when the crayon portrait of Richard Mansfield adorned the theater lobby where now, on a gold leaf easel, flashes the melancholy mug of Mr. Charles Chaplin.

Broadway never claimed distinction as a rendezvous of saints. Its reputation rested solely on its ability to minister satisfactorily to bizarre appetites. It was never any trouble to show goods. You could encounter adventure in manifold guises, from a fight to a frolic. They aimed to please. A satisfied customer was their best advertisement and the "bust" was invariably worth the headache.

But all that's shoved behind us, long ago and far away. Broadway today is a cheap edition of what Coney Island was before it got religion and joined the church.

Mazda Lane is a street given over to taxi drivers, deformed beggars, punts pressed out for a "lark," policemen and loose-lipped lads with limp cigarettes. The cheapness is its curse. The entertainment it purveys is cheap. The merchandise it displays is cheap. The coffee it sells is as rotten as the hooch and the smell would sicken a mongrel pup.

The gangster now holds sway where once the Pittsburgh millionaire dispensed largesse. "Diamond Jim" Brady has given place to Mike the Bitch. Rector has abdicated to Nick the Greek.

A bank occupies a certain Broadway corner, where, in the old days, a beer and booze bazaar dispensed refreshment to the jaded traveler along Mazda Lane. In the entire course of its existence nothing of more than passing interest ever focused attention on that long forgotten irrigation bureau.

The other day an armored truck drew up before the bronze doors of the bank. The truck was equipped with a machine gun and half a dozen armed guards patrolled the sidewalks in front of the money house while a transfer of steel boxes, containing gold, was effected.

In the old days a scene like that on Broadway would have earned a "ribbon head" on every newspaper in town. Today it isn't worth even casual rehearsal.

Don't let anybody kid you about the "great white way." There ain't no such animal.

Mazda Lane is a stretch of territory less than a mile in length, dotted with little collar shops, cake and coffee plants, movie houses and soft drink stands, lighted by scores of blinding electric signs that blazon the virtues of soda pop and underwear.

"Broadway might interest for a few minutes a man who had never learned to read," was Chester-ton's comment after a brief stroll along The Alley.

When you hear a man under forty gurgling about the glories of Broadway you may be sure he is peddling a tradition.

Broadway flopped the day the lobster palace gave way to the chop suey joint—the day the "orange drink" stall succeeded the gin mill—the day Mary Pickford supplanted Ada Rehan.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

There are several new and delicious recipes for preserves and marmalades which may be put up to advantage at this time of the year. One of these recipes includes our old holiday friend, the cranberry.

SPICED CRANBERRY JELLY

Pick over and wash one quart of cranberries. Add one cup of boiling water and cook until the berries are soft. Press through a sieve and add two cups of sugar, one-third cup of cold water, and a spice bag containing a piece of cinnamon, two dozen cloves and six allspice berries. Bring to the boiling point and simmer gently for about fifteen minutes. Add a few grains salt, turn into a mold and chill. Serve with any delicate meat.

APPLE GINGER

Wash, quarter, pare and core sour apples. To five cups of apple add five cups of sugar, grated rind of one lemon and an inch of ginger root. Bring gradually to a boiling point and cook gently until apples are transparent. Stir frequently to avoid burning and seal in hot, sterilized jars.

DATE AND CRANBERRY MARMALADE

Simmer gently for twenty minutes one quart cranberries with one pound stoned dates and one pint of water. Press through sieve, add two cups of light brown sugar and cook about fifteen minutes longer.

Many 1s SIGNIFICANT SAYINGS OF THE DAY

"It is a great mystery to me. I suppose it was given to me because I wrote nothing at all that year."—George Bernard Shaw, when informed he had been awarded Nobel literature prize for 1925.

"In the last eight years absolutely nothing has been done to promote peace. We sit here and deceive ourselves if we think anything—anything—has been done to lessen the possibility of war. War isn't guns. War isn't paraphernalia. War is hate, America is the most hated nation in the world."—Josephus Daniels, publisher, and former secretary of navy.

"The greatest missionary field in the world today is in the suburbs. When families move out to the suburbs they intend to keep on attending the old church in the city or join the local church. But there is so much to do about the new house. Sunday seems to be the only day when such things can be done. The newcomer finds the neighbors unusually neighborly. They love to play cards and dance. Saturday night seems to be the best night for these things and Sunday comes all too soon after. Again, life in the suburbs is apt to be so pleasant that one begins to wonder if, after all, the church is quite as necessary as it used to be."—The Rev. Dr. Arthur M. Ellis, at annual meeting of Congressional Home Boards.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

TITLES AS SMOKE SCREENS

I often wonder what is about me that causes my name to appear on so many kinds of sucker lists. I'm reluctant to believe that I'm any more glib than the average fellow and yet my mail is regularly cluttered with circulars for worthless stocks and all manner of plausible but foolish enterprises to catch the unwary.

This morning I received a letter from a publishing house and the man who signed the letter had added a "Ph. D." after his name, indicating that he regards his Ph. D. as of prime importance.

That made me at once suspicious and just for fun I took the trouble to look up the company this man works for. I learned that it is the kind of publishing concern commonly known as unethical, though a harsher term might be used. Their main business is with school teachers and others who write books of too inferior quality to interest legitimate publishers. An unethical publisher will accept such a manuscript, provided that the author will pay in advance all costs of publication. These costs are enough to give the publisher a substantial immediate profit, and he well knows that he will probably never dispose of many copies of the book after it is printed. In fact, he won't even make much effort to do so.

What I started to talk about, though, was the stupidity of the man who placed the Ph. D. after his signature, for that let the cat out of the bag.

A man of real consequence who is a doctor of philosophy never says much about it, because he is intelligent enough to know that it isn't of all-embracing importance—probably obtained by preparing an insane and futile thesis in a college, to be passed upon and approved by a group of old men with chin whiskers.

The man too eager to flaunt such a title is probably secretly ashamed either of his own shortcomings or those of the company with which he is identified. He is like the man, past middle age, who still wears a fraternity pin, or an extra large lodge emblem—because belonging to a certain "frat" or lodge is still to him the biggest thing he has ever done.

In other words, the man who brags about something trivial evidently hasn't anything better to brag about.

I notice, by the way, that men who had non-combatant commissions in the world war are the ones today most insistent upon being called by their military titles.

FIRST SCHOOL HOUSE

"The floor was made of slabs split from large timbers and made smooth on one side by a large broadaxe and these were laid on joists or sleepers and fastened down by wooden pins.

"The door was made from the same material as the floor, and was hung in places by wooden hinges and fastened together by wooden pins.

"The fireplace was made by cutting out a section of logs some five or six feet in length and by building up short pieces of timber outside as high as the joists at the point where the logs were cut, thus making a back wall and jambs, which were well lined with clay and mortar mingled with straw to make it more cohesive.

"A chimney was built up from the back wall by using short split sticks which were covered from within and without by mortar similar to that which lined the fireplace.

"This house was a type of those generally used in those days and as was common by judicious division of labor was completed in a single day. It is probable that William Jenkins was the first teacher in the house that I have described."

Just AMONG US GIRLS

by Kathryn Kenney

"NECKS" BEST

The man makes the love and the woman stirs it up. Too many cooks spoil the broth and too many kisses spoil a girl. Stirring up is the only thing which keeps courtship from going to sugar. No cake rises above its batter, and that goes for the big league stuff, too.

A man never used to kiss a girl until he was engaged to her, now he waits until she is engaged to another man. The stories about "spoiling" which used to circulate among the men are nothing compared to those which are told by the girls. A man is almost afraid to kiss a girl on his own hook for fear that he'll be landed by her line.

Men used to talk about girls who allowed themselves to be kissed, now they kiss those who allow themselves to be talked about. Turn about is fair play, especially if you turn quickly enough! This attitude on the part of the woman to check up on love-making is not such a bad idea. The man who knows his onions has most of the fair sex crying for him. A man used to kiss and not bother about his method, but in these days of specialization a man needs a license to drive anyone to drink. The man who aspires to be the perfect lover must whisper sweet nothings which have a double meaning and he must know them both.

This is the age when the woman not only pursues, she takes a chance. A man may not like to have somebody hot on his trail, but it's not going to do him any good to wear snow shoes. Women are going after what they want, so when a man looks out for danger ahead all the curves are behind!

Men may like to do the chasing but woman has the head start on him. She is going after the thing she wants and she's gaining on it. Men are gradually giving in and giving out. They want to be masters of their own homes, but the woman carries the pass-key.

A poor girl used to live in fear and trembling after she had let a man kiss her. She knew that her kisses would soon be on everyone's lips and that the results would be far-reaching as his arms.

A girl was known as a "kissing post" and she wasn't any little thing doing there either! Now the girl who hasn't been kissed is rare and she is also spare!

Girls are figuring that turn about is fair play instead of "fair pay" as it used to be. The only thing that tells on a woman nowadays is time. The men don't dare, the woman's side of the story is already out and anything he publishes is "extra!" It isn't so much a case of letting a good bet go as it is to make him think you're letting him.

At women's bridge parties in this fast day the chief topic of conversation is, "can so and so make love or could he be improved by the right direction?"

The man who kisses and tells has been lost in the din of the woman who kisses and yells. The girls decided that they were missing many a good bet so they've gone in for making petting popular. A man's kisses may not be anything to have about, but they will be, anyway!

SEVEN CENTRAL HIGH SENIORS PLAY LAST TIME AT WILMINGTON

Seven members of the Central High School grid squad have reached the point in their scholastic football careers where they will trot out on the field for the last time in the Wilmington game Friday afternoon.

These seven include Captain Max Marshall, halfback, William Graham, tackle, Fred Smith, fullback and Robert Butts, end, all regulars; and Homer Henrie, Halle Hill and Arthur Haverstick, substitutes. Harold Hunt, manager, also is a senior.

These boys will don the mole-skins for the last time and consequently will strive to put forth their best efforts to wind up the season with a victory over Xenia's most ancient and honorable foe, Wilmington.

ANTIOCH ARRANGES AMBITIOUS BASKET SCHEDULE FOR YEAR

An ambitious basketball schedule of fifteen games has been arranged for the 1926-27 season at Antioch College with the possibility another contest will be added to the list, according to an announcement by Coach Kennedy Wednesday.

Nine games will be played on foreign courts and six and possibly seven on the home floor. Division A and Division B students will divide the schedule, Division A playing the first three games, Division B the next six with A Division finishing the schedule.

The season opens December 8, when the school helps Cedarville College dedicate its new gymnasium and closes March 2 with the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. at the Queen City. There is a possibility a return game will be played with Cedarville at Yellow Springs. One game, the date with Muskingum at Yellow Springs, January 17, will be played in the afternoon at 4 o'clock instead of the evening.

The schedule follows:
December 8—Cedarville away.
December 11—Muskingum away.
December 15—Wilmington at home.
January 8—Miami away.
January 11—Capital at home.
January 17—Muskingum at home.
January 21—Bowling Green away.
January 29—Ashland at home.
February 1—Dayton away.
February 12—Bowling Green at home.
February 18—Capital at Columbus.
February 19—Ashland away.
February 24—Wilmington away.
February 26—Dayton at home.
March 2—Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. away.

CEDARVILLE PLANS TO DEDICATE NEW GYM DECEMBER 8

If present tentative plans are carried out, Cedarville College will dedicate its new $23,000 gymnasium, rapidly nearing completion, December 8 when the college basketball quintet meets its ancient rival, Antioch College, in the opening home game of the 1926-27 season. It is announced.

The new gymnasium for which $23,000 has been expended for modern improvements and equipment, has been in the process of construction during the summer months and is practically ready for occupancy except for finishing touches on the floor and erection of goals.

Coach Borst is preparing a schedule for the approaching cage season but several of the games booked are only tentative dates. It is certain the college will open its season December 3, playing Earlham College at Earlham.

BOWLING

Greene County Lumber Co. bowlers lost a little ground in the Xenia Bowling League race by losing one game in three to the last-place Artesians in a match Wednesday night.

Members of both teams rolled at the peak of form and every miscalculation recorded good scores.

No More Piles

THOUSANDS BLESS DR. LEONHARDT THE PHYSICIAN WHO DISCOVERED THIS COMMON SENSE REMEDY

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

This Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubt or delay, Sayre's Drug Store and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

Thus Central will not be as hard hit by graduation as is sometimes the case. Gibney and Morton will again be available in the backfield next year, while Coach Kolb will have but one end and one tackle position to fill on the line.

The Wilmington battle begins at 2:30 o'clock and will be played on the college gridiron in that city. Admission will be 50 cents to the public, 35 cents to students and 20 cents to grade pupils, it is announced.

The rival eleven are assured of officiating of the highest class with the announcement that the regular Dr. Dave Reese, Dayton, will referee.

PEDESTRIAN HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

John Christy, 65, former stock buyer, who resided for many years at Bowersville, is in a serious condition in a Springfield hospital from injuries sustained Tuesday night when struck by an auto in that city.

He suffered four broken ribs, and it is feared one lung is punctured. He also has a wound on his head and serious leg injuries. Mr. Christy was crossing the street near the traction depot, on Fountain Ave., it is said, when he was knocked down by a car driven by a woman whose name was not learned.

ARRANGE FUNERAL

Funeral services for Mrs. Eva Porter, 54, who passed away at her home on Thornhill Ave., Wednesday, will be held at the residence Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Remains will be shipped to the home of her mother, Mrs. Allen Beard, Liberty, Ind., early Friday morning. Interment will be made in that city.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

What Are You Doing For Your Puny Child?

ONE BOY GAINED 11 POUNDS IN 7 WEEKS AND IS NOW STRONG AND HEALTHY

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing help like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, sugar coated and as easy to take as candy.

One boy gained eleven and one-half pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for sixty cents at Sayre's Drug Store and all druggists and money back if not satisfied—always insist on McCoy's—the original and genuine. —Adv.

BAD COLD? TAKE "CASCARETS" FOR BOWELS TONIGHT

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache. Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. —Adv.

At last! A safe Rat Killer

K-R-O KILLS-RATS-ONLY

Here is a real sensation, a sure rat exterminator—not a poison—harmless to domestic pets and poultry. Manufactured from squill bulbs as recommended by U. S. Government chemists. 10% of K-R-O sprinkled in bait kills rats and mice quickly. Poultry, dogs, cats and other domestic pets have eaten stronger doses without any serious injury. Farmers and merchants who watched tests were amazed at results. Money-back guarantee. Sold in 2-oz. tins; 75c at your druggist's. K-R-O Company, Springfield, Ohio

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study. Olive Tablets are a purgative vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c. All Druggists.

What Is a Diuretic?

People Are Learning the Value of Occasional Use.

EVERYONE knows that a laxative stimulates the bowels. A diuretic performs a similar function to the kidneys. Under the strain of our modern life, our organs are apt to become sluggish and require assistance. More and more people are learning to use Doan's Pills, occasionally, to insure good elimination which is so essential to good health. More than 50,000 grateful users have given Doan's signed recommendations. Scarcely a community but has its representation. Ask your neighbor!

Mothers, Do This—

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief. As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use. It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

HUMAN NATURE

On the half shell

BY JOSEPH VAN RAALTE
OF EFS

SUCCESS IN CRIME

It would just tickle New York's police commissioner to death if he could get denizens of the underworld to understand that crime does not pay. Every little while he crashes into print with an interview stressing the stupidity of young men who go after profit for lawlessness to satisfy an ambition to procure money without working for it.

In a recent interview he said: "I can't see why it doesn't sink in to the brains of young men who want 'easy money,' that there's nothing in crime. You hear a lot of talk about the 'big money' crooks get away with. That's all bunk. The criminals I have encountered since I have been police commissioner have nothing to show for their burglaries and holdups. It's only one criminal in a million who gets away with it." The commissioner overlooks the fact that in crime, as in other forms of human endeavor, there are failures and successes. The country is full of successful crooks who are rolling in wealth. They will never be caught because they mix their activities with brains.

The average type of criminal with whom the police deals, is the moron—the broad shouldered, bull-necked husky who never should have been brought into the world in the first place and who, finding himself here, unequipped mentally and morally for the struggle that faces him, takes the "easiest way" out.

There are more grafting politicians, corrupt judges, dishonest advertisers, crooked cops and short weight prize sellers in the land than there are safe blowers, stick-up men and pickpockets.

One dishonest lawyer is a worse menace to a community than a dozen yeggs and petty larceny thieves. The lawyer doesn't get caught. He has brains enough to dodge the penalty of his wrong doing. The dull witted yegg, invariably lands in a cell. And when he is safely tucked away for a term of from one to twenty years, some moralist points to him and says: "You see, crime never pays".

We know a judge one time who presided over a criminal court. He was a crook if ever there was one. He had earned the judicial monkey fur by years of compromise. We have heard him sentence men to long terms in prison and we have listened while he hammered golden grains of morality into sheets of infinite platitude.

Being a judge he was invariably addressed as "Your Honor." Many and many a time we've heard him say: "Crime doesn't pay."

Certainly crime pays. It pays if it is indulged in with intelligence. If crime ceased tomorrow to pay, three-quarters of the reputations in New York would blow up with a concussion that would be felt all the way from Dan to Deersheba.

Intelligence is the only thing that ultimately reaps dividends. "I have encountered many wicked men in my time," said Stevenson "and I have met many fools, but I have observed that the fools were the first to encounter penalties."

MANY BUCKEYES AT STATE UNIVERSITY RECORDS REVEALED

Asia, Africa, Europe and North and South America have contributed this fall to a record breaking enrollment at Ohio State University but more than 90 per cent of the students claim the Buckeye state as their own, including eighteen from Xenia. registration records, just re-checked show.

The total enrollment is 9,308 and is most representative, geographically speaking, in the history of the university.

All of Ohio's eighty-eight counties, all of the cities of the state and scores of smaller communities are represented in the student population.

Xenia's representatives, with the colleges in which they are registered, are as follows:

Ralph Henry Donges, applied optics; Walter Arthur Galloway, engineering; Albert Elijah Gregory, arts; Emmett Emerson Hardy, pharmacy; Charles Clement Horrie, engineering; Bertha Beatrice Hyman, commerce and journalism; Howard B. Jordan, commerce and journalism; Philip Collins Kyle, medicine; James Belden Love, arts.

Daniel William Nichols, engineering; Anna Jane Robb; Raymond Stanley Short, graduate; John Robert Spahr, commerce and journalism; Robert Ernest Wead, arts; William Lewis Wead, arts; John J. Wolford, graduate; John A. Wood, dentist; Charles Noel Young, agriculture.

WIFE PRESERVERS

In washing net or lace curtains in machine, fold and refold them until they are proper size, and place them in layers in tub. Wet them well with cold water, then let them soak overnight in suds. Omitting starch will add to their life.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS IF BLADDER BOTH-ERS OR BACK HURTS

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delicious effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders. —Adv.

STORK CIRCLES U. S. WARSHIP, DROPS TRIPLETS

EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH, COPY-RIGHT, 1926

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 18.—It is known that James C. Malaney and the Missus, of Burlington, Vt., the town where the president's wife played as a girl, have presented to the United States navy its first triplets.

Not all boys eligible for membership in Uncle Sam's sea forces, to be sure; yet the first triplets born in the service.

Strangely enough to a young couple whose finances would not easily permit an increase of this size in the family, the babes—James C., Jr., Patricia Anne and Curtis Lord—have brought greater prosperity than they had ever enjoyed.

Civilian and military San Diego has beaten the Malaney path smooth, bearing gifts to the mother and the babes. Bottles, clothing, cribs—and finally $1,200 in cash from a "triplet benefit."

"We knew when we came west

we would have a good future," said Mrs. Malaney, "but we didn't dream of such notoriety as the babies are bringing us."

Malaney, a quartermaster, first class, aboard the submarine S-23, brought his wife and baby Blanche, then six months old, west eighteen months ago from Burlington, where Mrs. Malaney had spent the winter while her husband was with the fleet at Panama. Her introduction to San Diego was not favorable, for on the day she expected to meet her husband here his submarine had not arrived and she had no one to assist her in preparing a room and taking care of the baby.

But now she finds herself, not alone in a strange city, but the center of world attention, especially from the navy—the mother of the navy's first triplets.

League, is making a plea for a pair of overshoes for a man with an injured foot who is forced to do outdoor work. The man has eight children, and has been unable to work for several weeks owing to his injury. Anyone having a pair of overshoes to donate is asked to call the League Headquarters.

The Theatre

By MAURICE HENLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Probably you've often wondered how it is that a feminine player can weep genuine tears in a motion picture. Or possibly you are one who believes that an onion is concealed in a handkerchief or drops put into the eyes. Perhaps some players have to resort to these mechanical ways of producing liquid grief, but the good ones do not. In nine cases out of ten when you see a feminine player weeping on the screen, her tears are genuine.

But do you actually know how it is that she is made to weep?

I know one very prominent player who is taken aside by the director just prior to the big scene in which the star has to turn on the waterworks.

"Now listen," the director tells her, "the whole picture depends on this scene. If you flop the picture flops. And believe me if you do you're through with motion pictures. You've been sliding anyway; you've been terrible in your last pictures and your contract is expiring. This is your last chance to show that you are any good."

By that time the young woman is getting ready to burst out crying anyway and with the aid of soft music she is worked to just the right emotional pitch.

I know another director who takes the young woman in question aside and, talking gently to her brings back some of her girlhood memories. Possibly it is the death of her mother. Or perhaps her first big disappointment in life. He pulls her mind back into her youth and her mind back into the desired results. One young woman has to be told how good she is. The director tells her that there is no one like her and that he knows that she can do anything.

One of the few actresses who can make the tears flow seemingly at will is one you'd least expect it from. She is Lois Wilson who usually takes parts that do not require weeping. I watched her on the set the other day when she was making a court room scene for the picture "New York." She takes the part of the young society girl who marries Ricardo Cortez, an East Side dance hall musician who rises to fame as a composer. He is accused of a murder and put on trial for his life and it is when Miss Wilson is on the witness stand that she made a hand-doubled studio crowd grow tense and lumps come into their throats. I have never seen a ready-made crying spell to equal hers. Luther Reed, the director, talked with her before she went on the stand but I doubt if he did any more than impress her with the importance of the scene.

Recently D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" was revived by the Film Arts Guild here and all the newspaper boys and girls printed stories that D. W. was going to see the picture again in person. He certainly has cause not to forget it. Considerable publicity was given the showing and it looks now as though

Ohio Farmer Thanks Tanlac

Escapes From Serious Condition Caused by Nervousness, Gastritis, Loss of Sleep, Strength, Health Restored, Gains 12 Pounds.

John F. Meighen, now residing at 1309 Leonard Street, Dayton, Ohio, recently said: "For 2 or 3 years before taking Tanlac I was always ailing. I lost weight, felt weak. And my stomach caused great suffering, especially after lunch and dinner. And I never slept soundly. My nights were restless hours of tossing and turning."

"I had to force food into my stomach and then would be tormented by sharp pains. Gas forming in the stomach, bloated me, made me belch."

"I read of what Tanlac had done for so many people and began taking it. This tonic cleaned out my system, toned up my liver. I eat everything now without a sign of trouble and sleep like a child. Feel stronger and better than I have in many years, thanks to Tanlac."

CHAPTER XVI

Honey Lou gave her head a shake of sheer exasperation.

"Please come away, Margaret!" she whispered, "Please!"

But Margaret only gazed at her with the far-away look of a person who is listening to something else.

Honey Lou turned to go down the iron stairs. Then suddenly she stopped and listened, too.

Was that Jack Wallack's voice, coming from behind the closed door of "Gumpy's" office? Was it?

—It was!

Then, as she stood there without moving a muscle, she heard another voice. The soft, sweet, clear voice of Angela Allen.

Honey Lou could not make out what she was saying. She could hear only the low round tones that carried like the sound of a silver bell.

What were they doing there together? Jack and Angela—there in the deserted offices of the mills? And on Saturday afternoon, of all times?

"Hum—" she sighed. And, then startled by the sound of her own voice, she flew on down the stairs.

She reached the taxiab just as Margaret came out of the grim-looking old building behind her.

"Arbor street—Arbor street," she rapped out to the taxi driver. "And hurry!"

She wanted to get out of that street—away from the mills—as fast as she could. Before Jack and Angela should look out a window, or come down the stairs, and see her and Margaret there.

"It was Jack and—some girl, wasn't it?" she asked, turning her wide brown eyes to Margaret.

Her sister set her firm lips, and nodded.

"It was Jack Wallack and your dear friend, Angela," she said in her downright way. "You heard them, didn't you?"

"I heard their voices, but I didn't try to hear what they said," Honey Lou answered. "Oh, Margaret, really it was dreadful of you to listen in on them, the way you did—but tell me what they said!"

Margaret burst out laughing. "No, indeed, Miss Holler-Than-You," she said, "if you thought it was awful of me to listen, I certainly am not going to tell you what I heard."

And the more Honey Lou coaxed and begged her to tell, the more she shook her head and refused to say a word.

"What I can't understand is what they were doing down at the mills at that time of day. On Saturday afternoon, too," Honey Lou said thoughtfully, an hour later when she sat at the little table in their room, doing Margaret's nails for her. "I wonder if 'Gumpy' was in the office with them."

"No, he wasn't. I can tell you that much," Margaret replied promptly. "They were all alone."

Honey Lou glanced up quickly. "How could you tell that they were?"

"Oh—I could," Margaret said, frowning down at her nails. "Now, Honey Lou, don't try to pump me, because I'm not going to tell you what I heard in that office today. But I'll say this much—Don't have anything more to do with Jack Wallack. He's going to marry that Allen girl, just as sure as fate. And I'd check out of the whole affair before I was wished out, if I were you. Now, that's my advice to you. You can take it or leave it."

Honey Lou did neither. She simply thought it over carefully. She thought it over for two or three days, without coming to any conclusion at all.

Then three more days went by. Three days more, and not a word from Jack. Not a word. Not a sign. Not a look.

"Perhaps he's still peeved because Steve Mayhew had been here to see me that last night he came," Honey Lou debated with herself. "Perhaps he just doesn't care for me any more. Perhaps Angela was right when she said that he never loved any girl very long."

"Well, I'm not going to worry about it," she made up her mind sensibly, at last. "I should make myself unhappy and get a wrinkle!"

That night she went to the movies with her mother and Margaret, and did not think of Jack Wallack more than two dozen times during the two-hour program.

There was a big sign in the lobby when they went out of the theater, and they stopped to read it:

"STUNT NIGHT TOMORROW," it read.

"CASH PRIZES FOR AMATEURS IN BIG CHARLESTON CONTEST"

Underneath this legend a single sentence was printed in smaller letters: "Entrants please leave their name with ticket seller."

Honey Lou laughed. "What are you giggling about?" Margaret asked her sharply. "There's nothing so funny about a Charleston contest?"

"Oh, isn't there?" Honey Lou chuckled. "Well, there is about this one, if you only knew it. Let's come tomorrow night and see it."

But the next night, instead of coming home, she telephoned Mrs. Huntley from the office.

"I'm working late," she told her. "I'll meet you and Margaret at the show. Save a seat for me."

Steve Mayhew came to the house on Saturday night for supper, as he nearly always did.

"Where's Honey Lou?" was almost the first question that he asked, when he came in with his arms full of bundles. Candy for Honey Lou. Flowers for Mrs. Huntley. An armful of magazines for Margaret. "She's not coming home for supper. We're going to meet her at the movies," Mrs. Huntley answered him. "Steve, these flowers are perfectly beautiful. But you ought not to spend your money on them."

She buried her nose in the big bouquet of larkspur and yellow roses that he had brought for her. "Aren't they lovely, Margaret?"

"Lovely," Margaret echoed. But she was not looking at the flowers. Her steady eyes had never left Steve Mayhew's face since he had come into the room.

"Whom is Honey Lou having supper with?—Jack Wallack?" he asked her. And, still watching him closely, she shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know," she said. "I don't imagine so, though. She's going to meet us at seven-thirty at the theater."

There was a queer puzzled frown on her face as she walked out into the kitchen and put the teakettle on the stove.

At seven-thirty the three of them were in the packed theater.

At eight-thirty the feature picture had faded out and left the screen dark. The red velvet curtain rolled itself down to the floor. The footlights flashed up like little suns.

"I wonder where Honey Lou is," Mrs. Huntley said, turning in her seat to look for her. "She said she'd meet us here at half past seven. Steve, you go out into the lobby and see if she's waiting there for us, by any chance."

He was back in five minutes. "No, she's not out there," he answered. "She's probably having such a good time with Wallack that she can't tear herself away."

There was a sharp edge to his voice.

"What makes you so sure she's with him?" Margaret asked him, as he dropped down into his seat beside her. "I don't believe she ever sees him any more. She hasn't mentioned his name to me for days."

As she spoke, she gave him another long watchful look from the tail of her eye.

The first of the Charleston dancers came bounding out upon the stage. He was a boy, a pink-cheeked youngster dressed in the stars and stripes of Uncle Sam.

He was followed by twin girls of fifteen or sixteen, who kept getting out of step and giggling about it.

Then into the make-believe sunrise of the footlights flashed a swift little figure, all in white, right down to her twinkling toes.

Her eyes danced, her teeth flashed and she laughed as she came to the center of the little stage and began to Charleston to the stirring music of the song called "Baby Face."

"Good Lord!" Steve Mayhew said aloud.

"Harriet Louise Huntley!" gasped her mother, half under her breath. "Oh, Margaret, how could she do such a thing!"

Her hand groped for Margaret's, and held it tight. Her stricken eyes followed every movement of the little white figure on the stage.

Honey Lou could dance. Dancing came as naturally to her as breathing. And she had a perfect sense of rhythm.

But it wasn't her dancing that drew the crowd forward in their seats, and held their eyes, and kept them breathlessly silent.

It was Honey Lou, herself, who did that. She was embodied joy and youth as she flashed from one side of the stage to the other, doing the mad, half-civilized dance.

She was having the time of her life, and the crowd knew it, and felt it.

And then she began to sing. "Baby face—You got the cutest little baby face," sang Honey Lou, and the crowd began to sway ever so slightly in time to the music.

Honey Lou laughed at them, and they laughed back at her. She held out her slender arms to them as she sang on:

"There's not another one could take your place,"

"Baby face—"

"My poor heart is jumping,"

"You sure have got 'em thumping,"

"Baby face—"

Then all at once she stopped singing. She stopped dancing. The smile faded in her eyes, and the laughter died on her red mouth.

"Stage fright," Steve Mayhew whispered to Margaret.

But Margaret shook her head. Her eyes had followed Honey Lou's frightened, bewildered gaze, and she was still looking over her shoulder.

Three or four rows behind her, full in the radiance that poured out from the stage, sat Jack Wallack.

He had not seen Margaret. His eyes were straight ahead of him, fixed on the red velvet curtain where the spotlight still burned like an enormous bull's eye. As Margaret watched him, he got up, and left the theater.
